Washington (CP)—Indictment of individuals believed to be a part of a liquor conspiracy through the leakage of industrial alcohol is part of a drive which federal officials have for a long time contemplated but on which it has been difficult to get evidence.

The whole crux of the controversy over the transfer of bureaus from the treasury department to the department of justice has centered upon better methods of getting evidence but when the control of industrial alcohol was left in the treasury department many of the drys looked askance. It is recognized that much of the supply to the bootleg world comes from industrial alcohol.

Legitimate concerns which have a vital need of industrial alcohol have suffered many restrictions which have interfered with their business but on the other hand, notwithstanding these regulations, large quantities of alcohol have been re-sold and distributed instead of being manufactured for the purpose the original permits might have specified.

The government has not always been able to follow through on what happened to large quantities of industrial alcohol which go to manufacturing of toilet and medicinal preparations. There has been gossip for several years about this leakage but no practical way to stop it has ever been offered. Chemistry has played its part in recovering alcohol even though it might have been rendered useless at one time for beverage purposes.

DRYS WANT RESULTS
The bureau of responsibility rests with the treasury department to see to it that the permit system is not abused. The possibility that the whole prohibition investigation may center on the permit and industrial alcohol side has been growing in recent months. The decision to round up individuals connected with companies suspected of violating the law comes at a psychological moment and indicates that the drys are not going to allow the treasury department to retain control of the industrial alcohol situation without probing it for results.

The difficulty of course is that a large prohibition personnel would be needed to watch every factory and every outlet. It is impossible except with an extraordinary appropriation to keep even the largest of the factories under surveillance. It is known that large quantities of alcohol are daily being recovered for patent medicines and toilet articles and used in the manufacture of beverages.

The treasury has had its hands full from the beginning and has had much criticism when it suggested the production of persons so as to limit the use of industrial alcohol. This phase of the prohibition question is one of the most perplexing of all because it means the presence of a large source of supply for the liquor traffic.

BEGIN PICKING JURORS
FOR EMMET WHITE TRIAL
Duluth, Minn.—(CP)—Selection of jurors began here in the trial of Emmet J. White, United States customs portmaster, charged with second degree murder for the fatal shooting of Gust Henry Wirkkala, Big Falls, Minn., last summer, when the latter failed to stop his motor car to submit to a search for liquor. White, with E. V. Servino, another customs portmaster, flashed a cloth sign marked "stop," Wirkkala, driving a large automobile, did not halt promptly and on orders from Servino to "let him have it," White discharged a shotgun loaded with heavy shot, intending to hit the tires. A large number of shot penetrated the automobile and Wirkkala "cropped dead." No liquor was found in the automobile.

White faces an indictment charging second degree murder brought in Koochiching county district court, a state tribunal, but trial was transferred to federal district court under an old federal statute providing for removal of cases in the case of customs employees.

WOMAN SLAYER MUST
HANG, BOARD STATES
Phoenix, Ariz.—(CP)—The Arizona State Board of Pardons and Paroles today denied the petition of Mrs. Eva Dugan for commutation of the death sentence. She is under sentence to hang here Feb. 21 for the murder in 1927 of A. J. Mathis, then a Tucson, Ariz., resident, and his wife, and the first woman in Arizona to die on the gallows.

Cunningham Post May Be Offered Nye

Madison Man May Become
Dry Administrator for East
Wisconsin

Milwaukee (CP)—A shakeup which would remove W. Frank Cunningham from his post as prohibition administrator for eastern Wisconsin and bring Ray J. Nye in from Madison to succeed him was forecast today by Milwaukee newspapers.

The reported changes followed a conference here between James A. Doran, head of the national prohibition department, and Levi H. Bancroft, federal district attorney.

Bancroft and Cunningham have long been at odds, and their antagonism has manifested itself in the trial of several cases. The papers understood that Doran, who refused to say definitely that Cunningham would be transferred, decided to make the change in interests of harmony in law enforcement.

Where Cunningham would go, and whether he would succeed Nye as administrator for west Wisconsin was not indicated. Reports were that Lane Moloney, chief investigator in the district, and several minor officers also would be moved elsewhere.

Bancroft made it plain that "lack of confidence in his ability or honesty" would have nothing to do with Cunningham's removal.

"I told Mr. Doran," he said, "and I have said it before that a Wisconsin man, who knows the situation in this state and the feelings of the people toward prohibition, should be appointed. He should be a man in whom the people have confidence; a man who will enforce the law and give due regard to the peculiarities of the people of a state which has repudiated prohibition."

Asked if Nye was the type of man sought, Bancroft answered that "Mr. Nye would be perfectly satisfactory."

Doran remarked that "Mr. Cunningham has been here three years. It is possible that he may be tired of his task here and would like to go to another district."

RUMOR SHAKUP

Chicago (CP)—The liquor flareup that attracted Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran to the middle west, brought him to Chicago today, accompanied by persistent rumors of a shakeup in the Chicago enforcement personnel.

He said he was making an investigation of Chicago dry law enforcement, but repeatedly refused to discuss whether or not the rumored changes would include E. C. Tellew, district administrator.

Doran planned to return to Washington today, saying that "if any changes are made they will be announced from Washington."

Before leaving Milwaukee yesterday, Doran disclosed that W. Frank Cunningham, deputy administrator there, had been transferred.

It was further disclosed in Springfield, Ill., that another firm, the J. E. Hubinger company of Keokuk, Iowa, had been indicted for illegal shipment of corn sugar to alleged distillers.

132 ARE INDICTED UNDER JONES LAW

Grand Jury at St. Louis
Brings First Wholesale
Action Under Statute

St. Louis (CP)—A federal grand jury today returned 116 indictments against 132 men and two women, charging liquor law violations under the Jones law.

This action represented the first wholesale use of the Jones law, providing maximum penalties of five years imprisonment or $10,000 fines, or both, by a St. Louis grand jury. A federal court grand jury last year indicted 100 alleged liquor law violators under the Jones law.

Most of those named in today's indictments are persons accused of bootlegging and dealing regularly in illicit liquor traffic in the St. Louis district. The two women indicted were Helen Vachuda, roadhouse proprietor recently convicted of manslaughter for the killing of her stepson, and a sister, and Mrs. William Tabor, indicted with her husband, Fred, for alleged liquor sales.

Rhineland — (CP)—Cut off from medical aid by snow-blocked roads, Pan Petrovich, 43, died of appendicitis Monday night on his farm north of here. His son was unable to make his way through the drifts to call a doctor. The death became known today after roads were reopened.

Hughes' Foes Gain Power In Senate

VOTE HELD UP

Washington Democrat
Speaks for Hour Against
Nominee's Economic Views

Washington (CP)—Opponents of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of the United States undertook a determined drive against his confirmation in the senate today and leaders were apprehensive of getting a vote before night.

Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, picked up the attack at the outset today. He spoke for more than an hour against the economic views of the nominee which he assailed as dangerous to the "common people." Dill's conclusion was awaited by several others anxious to speak against Hughes.

Senators Norris, Nebraska, and Borah, Idaho, of the western Republican Independents, who launched the surprise offensive against the former secretary of state and supreme court justice, were obviously encouraged over the movement against Hughes but they maintained they would make no effort to forestall a final vote.

Despite the criticism of Hughes voiced yesterday by Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, the Democratic leaders indicated there would be a majority on their side for confirmation. Republican leaders were busy sipping up their votes and announced a "decisive majority" was in prospect whenever a vote could be obtained.

Senator Dill directed his attack upon the views of Hughes as expressed in his appeals before the supreme court. He also contended that the American people had rejected Hughes in 1916 for the presidency because of his economic views.

LARGE CROWD PRESENT
As the discussion on the nomination continued the spectators' galleries filled almost to capacity.

Appealing to those who he said believed in the superiority of human rights over property rights, Dill said: "It seems to me that those who claim to fight on the side of the common people cannot justify vote to add to this great tribunal a man who is the embodiment of those who have great wealth and want more."

During a passage with Senator Shortridge, Republican, California, the Washington senator observed that the people who voted to seat Shortridge voted against Mr. Hughes.

"That has no bearing whatever on the qualification of Mr. Hughes," replied the Californian.

Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, followed Dill in the attack against Hughes.

"His vote will determine whether the Progressive party wants to go ahead," he said, "or whether the Conservative group is going to go on."

IOWA WANTS BORAH OR NORRIS IN HOOVER PLACE

Washington (CP)—Senator Brookhart, Republican Independent, Iowa, asserted in the senate today that if the Democrats would nominate Senator Norris, Nebraska, or Senator Borah, Idaho, in 1932, he would support them against President Hoover.

Brookhart made the assertion during debate on the confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of the United States. The Iowa senator, who was assailing the Hughes nomination, was asked by Senator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, whether he would support Herbert Hoover again in 1932.

"It depends on whom the Democrats nominate," Brookhart replied. "There are lots worse men than Hoover. Nominate Senator George Norris or Senator William E. Borah and I will support you."

Norris and Borah are Republican Independents. During the discussion Brookhart said he voted for Woodrow Wilson.

HUNT FOR CAUSE OF SUICIDE BY STUDENT

Milwaukee (CP)—Police sought in vain today for the reason why Valer Dennis, 28, a star student at the Milwaukee School of Engineering, committed suicide.

Dennis' body was found hanging in his room. In his pockets were $35 and $2,000 in stock certificates.

In a letter to his family, which lives in South Chicago, he begged forgiveness for his "mad desire to end it all."

Coolidge District Picks Democrat For Congressman

Avowed Wet First to Win
Office Since Area Was Organized in 1893

Springfield, Mass.—(CP)—The Second Congressional district which includes Northampton, home of Calvin Coolidge, has chosen a Democrat, William J. Ganfield, avowed wet, to sit in congress for the first time since it was laid out in 1893. The district had sent Senator Gillett, Republican, to the house for many years.

In an overwhelming victory in yesterday's special election, Ganfield defeated Frederick D. Griggs, Republican. He will succeed the late Congressman W. Kirk Kaynor. The vote was: Ganfield 31,150; Griggs, 24,749. Both lived in Springfield.

Two candidates running on "bone dry" platforms received a scattering vote. Attorney Whitefield Field polled 1,081 votes and former Mayor William H. Foster of Northampton received 57. The total vote of the district, 57,087, was large.

Conflicting issues marked the campaign. Ganfield was aided by the plea of Senator David I. Walsh last Saturday for a Democratic victory to protest what he termed the failure of the administration to acknowledge the unemployment situation. He demanded consideration for New England industry in tariff making.

Griggs, a "dry" personally, said before the primaries he would recognize the referendum vote of the district on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment as mandatory upon him to vote for modification.

Ganfield carried Northampton, receiving 2,891 votes to 1,743 for Griggs. He won all three cities of the district, Springfield, Northampton and Chicopee, and 6 of the 13 towns.

Springfield, normally Republican, gave Ganfield a total of 17,410 votes to 13,704 for Griggs. Two usually Republican towns, Springfield and Agawam, also were carried by Ganfield.

PROTEST MEETING FOLLOWS OUTBREAK

Cleveland Unemployed
Prepare to Stage Rally
Against "Police Brutality"

Cleveland, Ohio (CP)—A mass "protest" meeting was called for late today by leaders of the 1,200 unemployed men and women who pitted fists and knives against police night sticks in a "work or food" riot before the city hall yesterday.

Women and children were urged to join a public rally against "police brutality" by orators who reiterated waving strips of policemen's coats tails as banners after the unemployed had been beaten away from the city hall.

Nine alleged rioters were under arrest today, two more of the unemployed and three policemen were suffering from injuries and more than a score of others nursed bruises from kicks and blows.

Cumulating a three months offensive against the city council since unemployment became acute, the so-called Council of the Unemployed recruited some 1,200 persons and marched on the city hall to demand work or food. A council committee scheduled to hear their representatives about unemployment.

A wild melee followed when police refused to admit the entire gathering and attempted to clear the streets. Three officers went down and a furious scramble raged for half an hour with police swinging night sticks. The rioters lost when two fire trucks arrived and made ready to throw a water barrage.

Although organizations claiming Communist affiliations have frequently stormed council meetings, officials said they believed no Communist group was directly responsible for the outbreak.

ELDERLY WOMAN HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

Mrs. Frank Chandler, 65, 403 N. Clark-st., is in St. Elizabeth hospital with a fractured pelvis and rib, suffered in an automobile collision at the corner of Drew and Pacific-sts. Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Chandler, returning from the Albert Priest funeral, was in a car driven by J. A. Cusick of Green Bay when it collided with a car driven by Meyer Shapiro. The other occupants of the Cusick car, Mrs. Cusick, Mrs. Fred Gerald, Appleton, and J. W. Zahrt, N. Division-st., were uninjured.

Both cars were damaged.

Milwaukee (CP)—Ben G. Finke and Henry Strawn, former federal prohibition agents convicted of bribery, were taken to Leavenworth prison Tuesday to begin serving their terms.

25 Indicted In Western Rum Smuggling Conspiracy

Spokane, Wash.—(CP)—Twenty-five persons were under indictment here today in what the government alleges was a huge conspiracy to transport liquor from Canada to northwest cities of the United States by mule pack trains.

The conspiracy, the government charged, had resulted in thousands of dollars worth of liquor being smuggled into the United States.

Three mule packs, accused of using pack trains to bring in the liquor, were said to have resorted to camouflage to hide the long lines of plodding, liquor-laden animals, and at times to have driven the mules over United States forestry trails.

So systematized were the widespread operations at the autopsy, was a "traffic manager" was employed to route the many pack trains from Canada to secluded places opposite the sparsely settled and mountainous Okanogan country in north central Washington.

SEE DEFINITE LIMIT PUT ON ALL U-BOATS

U. S. and British Delegations
Think Position Curbs Use
During Warfare

London (CP)—The French delegation to the naval conference late today announced it would issue a statement tomorrow night setting forth French tonnage desires for the period 1930-36.

London (CP)—Both the American and British delegations to the London naval conference new regard the position taken at yesterday's plenary session regarding submarines representing a definite decision to restrict the use of submarines against merchant ships.

The statement of Secretary Stimson last night that he regarded yesterday's work as a significant achievement for the conference in view of the fact that submarine problems were referred to a committee for study without the plenary session expressing a formal vote by vote.

"During a conference with newspapermen last night the secretary said in part:

"Concerning the plenary meeting this morning, I want to call your attention to the fact that there has been a definite decision by the naval conference today. Not a restrictive one—a definite one.

"The five powers agreed to restrict the use of the submarine against merchant ships to the same rules which are applied to surface vessels.

"I want to say about that, that I regard that single incident as worth the visit of the American delegation here in London. That marks a step forward in matters that our country once went to war about."

The secretary also said that his plan had been given for the movement for the eventual abolition of submarines.

BRITISH AGREE

Newspaper men this morning fired a volley of questions at the British spokesman concerning Secretary Stimson's pronouncement and were informed that the British delegation gave unequivocal adherence to the secretary's interpretation of yesterday's events.

The American delegation met this morning to work out the details of American submarine policy for presentation before the conference committee of the whole when the question arises in that body. The delegation expected to have everything in concrete form by tomorrow.

Another department out of American headquarters was that the delegation decided to stand firmly on its position that the unlimited categories, namely cruisers, destroyers and submarines, must be settled before the battleship problem finally is attacked.

It was confirmed that the French had presented tentative figures for the tonnage desired by France and it was said that the French had a sufficient basis for that purpose. Progress could be made by the committee which is drawing up a formula for combining global and category methods of measuring tonnage.

This committee has several times made agreement on some points but is still struggling with others. A report of its progress was expected this afternoon.

MEXICO MAY SEND FLORES TO DEATH

New Penal Code Allows Execution for Attempt on Official's Life

Mexico City (CP)—Tomas Flores, who shot and wounded President Ortiz Rubio last year, may be executed for his crime.

Secretary of the Interior Portes Gil, under whose administration Flores shot the president, the new penal code abolishes the death sentence for common crime in a statute to the effect.

The code differentiates between political and ordinary crimes, he pointed out, and death may be inflicted as punishment for an attempt on a public official's life.

Flores has been held in the military prison here since the day of the shooting, subject to constant interrogation in which both military and civil authorities have participated.

Both the idea that the plot may have been of a communicative nature and the possibility that it may have involved some other political element contrary to the government have been proved. An official announcement giving the result of the investigation is expected soon.

The president is reported to be recovering from his wound and the defendants are taken to Leavenworth prison on bonds ranging from $2,000 to $3,000.

83 Dogs Die As Refuge Is Burned Down

Lake Forest, Ill.—(CP)—The 83 dogs turned to death when fire destroyed Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin's dog refuge, "Orphans of the Storm," yesterday, did not die in vain.

Mrs. McLaughlin announced today that a new and even better refuge for homeless dogs would replace the 1,000 kennels that burned.

She furthermore declared that she would demand a thorough investigation by the fire marshal's office and would press prosecution if it were found the fire was of incendiary origin, as she believed.

The theory of the fire, which was borne out, she said, not only by the nature of the fire itself, starting at 4:41 in the early morning hours, but by the fact that telephone wires leading from the keeper's dwelling were cut, preventing the summoning of firemen.

There have been several complaints to the Lake-county prosecutor recently against the refuge which the complainants describe as a nuisance.

The barking of the keeper's own dog, Dim, raised the first alarm. The keeper, Tom Webster, released 40 dogs while his wife drove a truck several miles to summon aid, which arrived too late to be of value.

Mrs. McLaughlin's crusade against cruelty to animals on several occasions brought her into newspaper headlines. Once she challenged the Chicago health commissioner's order for all dogs to be inoculated against rabies. She publicly objected to horse show harness that forced the horses to hold their heads erect.

Regel, the health commissioner, was a rare malady, and was called "mad" dogs more likely were sick dogs. The commissioner reminded Mrs. McLaughlin that she had been called a style originator.

JUNK MAN DENIES SLAYING CHARGE

Accused of Burning Body in Barrel—Police Hunt for Missing Partner

Springfield, Ill.—(CP)—Harry Ross, junk dealer, denied to police here today that he had killed anyone or burned a body as charged by Joseph Hornbeck, whom Ross hired to drive a truck load of furniture from here to Hannibal, Mo.

Ross, returning today from Hannibal, also denied to police that he had killed his former business partner, John Babcock, whom police are unable to locate.

Ross said he had gone to Oklahoma to Texas to work for a railroad.

According to Hornbeck, Ross took a barrel from his truck Sunday night enroute to Hannibal and burned it near a brick and dance hall at Florence, Ill. Hornbeck claimed he smelled burning flesh and remarked to Ross about it, claiming Ross answered "yes," he burned a man. Ross said that all he burned in the barrel was old rubber tubes and automobile tires.

Police, searching the former Tubes home here, found a bloody mattress and bloodstained room in which was also found a laundry ticket, bearing Babcock's name.

Hornbeck reported the barrel burning and alleged conversation to police Monday night, and said that when Ross returned to Springfield, City physicians said that the bones found in the charred remains of the barrel were human, but they have no reports of missing persons, although they have been unable to locate Babcock.

SAYS CONSENT DECREE NOT FULLY OBEYED BY PACKERS

Washington (CP)—The senate agreed today that the consent decree issued by Attorney General Mitchell that the packers had "never fully complied" with a consent decree under which they were to confine themselves principally to meat packing.

The Mitchell letter was in response to a senate resolution asking the present status of the decree, which the packers have asked to be modified on the ground that conditions have changed since entry of the decree Feb. 27, 1926. It was placed in the record by Chairman McNary, of the agriculture committee.

The provisions of the decree, especially with reference to packer ownership of stockyard stock and handling of unrelated commodities, have never been fully complied with," Mr. Mitchell said.

He added that since the decree was made operative again on July 24, 1929, after a suspension of several years, the packers found large holdings of stockyard stock and "so-called unrelated commodities" on hand that had accumulated during the suspension.

FIRST INQUIRY ON MERITS OF LAW IS BEGUN

Writer Brings Sensational
Charges About Conditions in Big Cities

METHODS ARE SCORED
Chairman Graham Deplores
Law—Wets Won't Testify Until Later

Washington (CP)—The first congressional hearing in the decade of prohibition on the merits of the dry statute itself opened at the capitol today with a denunciation of the law by Chairman Graham, Republican, Pennsylvania, of the house judiciary committee and a series of sensational charges concerning enforcement conditions in half a dozen big American cities.

Judges, police officials and even the governor of Michigan, were assailed by Walter Liggitt, a magazine writer, and the first witness before the committee. Without mentioning names, he told of a party in Detroit on the night of Nov. 5, 1929, at which he said the governor and the chief of police of Detroit and four judges were present.

But this was only a part of Liggitt's general indictment. Going down the line he denounced conditions in Boston, Washington, Toledo, Chicago, Minneapolis and in Wichita, Kansas, where he said there were one of the "classiest" race houses to be found, comparing favorably with those in New York city.

Finally he was asked by Representative Michener, Republican, Michigan, a member of the judiciary committee, if he stood ready to furnish proof of his assertions.

SAYS HE HAS PROOF
Liggitt answered "yes," but at the same time expressed doubt that he would ever be called upon to confirm his story because he added he had the facts.

Liggitt recently engaged in an exposure of Washington liquor conditions and appeared before a District of Columbia jury. The jury which investigated conditions generally returned only a few indictments.

Chairman Graham at the outset of the session, which was one punctuated frequently by applause from spectators as the witness on the stand engaged in exchanges of debate with committee members, said that the department amendment and the enforcement law have been tested for two years "without satisfactory results."

"Enforcement has left a train of consequences most deplorable and depressing to every part of the country," Graham declared. "Killings amounting to over 1,500 have resulted in the last ten years from enforcement."

"One hundred and fifty-one citizens were killed by prohibition officers and 61 accused by prohibition officers. In one year there were 17,000 arrests for violations, alleged or real."

"During the first year under prohibition there were 20,000 cases instituted, and during the last fiscal year there were close to 20,000."

"Demand for more prisons has been made and new ones ordered. What is the result? Not such a reduction of crime as was expected from over-crowding except for a period of five years or possibly ten. Prison population has jumped 4 per cent per 100,000 in the last five years."

MUST FIND REMEDY
"When we add corruption, bribery, demoralization of the citizenry, disrespect for law, bootlegging and kidnapping offenses, does not such a picture call for the most dispassionate judgment of men and women, to come together and reason over what remedy can be devised to abate this sad condition?"

Chairman Graham said no law would be enforced that was destructive of right and individual liberty.

"You may create a guerrilla warfare and conditions reeking with murder, bribery, corruption, violations of civil liberties and disrespect for all law," Graham said. "Every law to be capable of being enforced without such a train of consequences must not be inconsistent with the mind of the people of the country as being right and must not be destructive of individual liberty."

Chairman Graham prefaced this statement by saying that seven resolutions each containing a proposition to amend the constitution were introduced by seven different members and referred to the judiciary committee by the house for consideration.

The purpose also, he said, was for the committee if it deemed them meritorious to have them reported back to the house. Their adoption

Ambassador Sackett spoke in English while President von Hindenburg used German.

After the formal exchange of addresses the president and the ambassador chatted awhile. Mr. Sackett was so impressed with the earnestness and evident vigor and health of President von Hindenburg that he could not refrain on leaving from expressing his pleasure. The president smiled and replied: "Well, I may be pretty old, but nevertheless—and here he stamped his foot and made a gesture as though he were about to start off marching like a young man.

Nation Observes 121st Anniversary Of Great Emancipator's Birth

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Today they observe the 121st anniversary of his birth.

Particularly here, where he sleeps. And in Chicago, where he was nominated to the presidency. But also everywhere in America—banquets, auditoriums, churches and from the rostra of little country schools, fast vanishing as are most of the institutions of his day.

Banks close, honoring his memory—he who never had much money to worry about. Trade drags. The air fills with the oratory both of the glib of tongue and of the stammering school child.

Much speechmaking here. Allan Nevins, New York newspaperman and member of the Columbia university faculty, stands in the Sangamon-co court room, rich in memories of the man he eulogizes, and states that there might have been no "tragic era" had the emancipator lived through the reconstruction period.

"What his reconstruction plan would have been, we can only conjecture," he says. "We may be certain, however, he would have opposed all confiscation of southern property, all harsh treatment of former Confederates; that he would have opposed undue prolongation of military government for the south, and that he would have been against the immediate grant of the ballot to all Negroes."

Dr. R. C. Dean, former assistant state director of labor, noted that today is the centenary of the rail-splitter's coming of age. He announced the incorporation of an organization which will seek "to make in intensive study of his various ventures in business, to note the methods he used, the results he was able to secure, and to make these results available for the beginning—as well as the experienced—business man."

Then there was the reading of Miss Alice Clark's ode, this year's first prize winner in the annual contest. It drew an analogy of a martyred president and a martyred Christ.

In Chicago, a handful of men who went through the years '61-'65 wearing the Union blue met in memory of the man who was their commander-in-chief. There are not many more years left for this tribute. The years go marching on.

Out at the Chicago Historical society, they brought out the familiar tall hat and the cotton umbrella—the old barouche in which he rode—the bed on which he died.

In the Chicago parks, as in years past, hundreds paused for a moment in front of the famous figures in stone—the "standing" statue that rises in the park that bears his name; the "sitting" statue in Grant park, framed on one side by the lake, and on the other by a boulevard of skyscrapers.

Who was this man? Be there any who does now know?

HONORED IN LONDON

London—(AP)—A bust of Abraham Lincoln, the work of Andrew O'Connor, Irish-American sculptor who presented it to the city of London as a token of Anglo-American friendship, was unveiled at the Royal exchange today by the lord mayor, Sir William Waterlot, it was formally presented to the city by the marquis of Crewe who acted for the marquis of Reading, chairman of the Lincoln committee.

The bust is carved from a block of American limestone quarried near Lincoln's birthplace and portrayed the president in middle age before the Civil war.

The marquis of Crewe said the Lincoln committee handed the bust over to the Gresham committee which placed it here so that it might rest in the very heart of the city "in London's central roar" as a lasting memorial of homage to a most noble life and to friendship with the land that Abraham Lincoln loved.

The first period of Lincoln's life, including the seven years spent in Kentucky, gave him his boyhood training. The second period, the 14 years spent in Indiana, gave the great president his extraordinary physical development, the education gleaned from constant reading of world while books and the traits of reverence, kindness and temperance, said MacHarg. The speaker pointed out the effect of the two great sorrows in Lincoln's life during this period.

"Lincoln was a great general and a great military leader," MacHarg said. The rise from local political eminence in Illinois to the leadership of the nation, the effect of the great personality on the problems of the civil war, and a few of Lincoln's personal experiences were told by the speaker.

The tube had been closed shortly after 1 o'clock p. m., yesterday as a precautionary measure, as the burning ship rested in the mud 30 feet above the top of the tunnel and officials feared another heavy explosion aboard the ship might damage the tube. Transit officials this morning gave permission to resume service after an inspection disclosed that the tube had not been damaged.

LINCOLN'S LIFE TRACED BY M'HARG

Outstanding Periods of Emancipator's Life Described for Students

"Life is all a mystery, and I cannot tell the animating influence that made Lincoln follow his star," said Dr. J. B. MacHarg, professor of American history at Lawrence college, in a chapel address today. MacHarg commemorated the birth of Lincoln by recounting the life of the great emancipator, dividing the account into definite periods and pointing out the outstanding elements of each division.

The first period of Lincoln's life, including the seven years spent in Kentucky, gave him his boyhood training. The second period, the 14 years spent in Indiana, gave the great president his extraordinary physical development, the education gleaned from constant reading of world while books and the traits of reverence, kindness and temperance, said MacHarg. CHURCH ACTORS ALL READY FOR DRAMA

Setting and Costumes of "Cranford" Go Back to Days of William IV

The first showing of "Cranford" by members of the Presbyterian church, will be given at the church Thursday evening, with a second performance on Friday evening. Rehearsals have been held almost every night for several weeks, and the presentation, including acting, setting, and costumes, is rounding into an accurate interpretation of the characters and situations in the delightful old story of English womanhood at the time when William IV reigned in England.

Antique furniture, old-fashioned clothes and numerous time-worn knickknacks have been secured to produce the proper "Cranford" atmosphere, and the actors have been trained in the mannerisms of the prudish, ultra-conventional women of the time.

7,000 CANARIES ARE SAFE AND CHEERY IN SPITE OF SHIP FIRE

New York—(AP)—Flare down in Number 4 hold, flames to the right and left of them, a majority of 7,000 canaries lived through the fire that swept the North German Lloyd liner Muenchen today.

When firemen penetrated the hold today, expecting to find all the birds dead, they were greeted by cheerful chirps. Water had seeped into the compartment but there was no indication that the flames or smoke had reached the feathered passengers.

The crates containing the birds were quickly removed to the dock and bird seed and water supplied.

In addition to Franke, a fireman lost his life when he was blown from a lifeboat into the water by the force of one of the explosions that shook the vessel.

TWO PERSONS ARE HURT IN BOMB BLAST

$25,000 Damage Done in Chicago North Side—Police Hunt for Crows

Chicago—(AP)—Another terrific explosion shook the north side last night. Two people were injured, the rear of the building housing the Northwestern Laundry company was wrecked and the damage was estimated at more than $25,000.

At first attributed to a bursting boiler, fire department officials later found the boilers intact and said the explosion was caused by a bomb.

Several hours later, far across the city on the south side, a second bomb was exploded beneath the bedroom window of William Roberts, a trucking contractor. The house was damaged and nearby windows shattered.

The north side explosion rocked the business district at the intersection of Lincoln-ave and Diversey Parkway. Hundreds of windows were broken and automobiles were covered with glass and debris.

The explosion, occurring at 11:20 p. m., attracted several thousand people, one woman, walking on a street to the rear of the laundry, was struck by flying glass and her head badly cut. A man driving a truck past the alley entrance was hurled to the ground when the windshield of his truck was blown in.

The owners of the laundry were unable to account for the explosion. Their truck drivers were all union men, and they had not labor trouble, they said.

With all windows blown out of their homes, many families in the neighborhood were forced to seek other shelter for the night.

Roberts also said he had had no labor trouble and could not account for the bombing of his home. He and his wife were thrown from bed but were not injured.

General Offers To Fight Prof For His Questions

Macon, Ga.—(AP)—Addressing the Georgia Conference on the Cause and Cure of War, Major General Frank R. McCoy, fourth Corps area commander, offered to fight a college professor last night because of the "tone" of questions which the educator propounded to him regarding the foreign policy of the United States.

After the meeting, however, the general was introduced to his questioner, Prof. John D. Allen, instructor in Journalism at Mercer university, and a conversation brought the incident to an amicable end.

The general delivered an address on "Certain Practical Peace Problems," dealing with the occupation of Cuba, the Nicaraguan intervention and the committee of inquiry and conciliation which adjusted the Bolivian-Paraguayan dispute. He announced he would answer questions from the audience.

"Does the Monroe doctrine or the constitution give the president the right to land marines when he wishes, to do so?" Prof. Allen inquired.

As commander-in-chief of the army and navy the president has the authority to land marines in any country," the general replied.

"Could the president, for example, land troops in Great Britain?" asked the professor.

"Yes, but he wouldn't," said the general.

"Does the United States wish to civilize the Latin-American countries or does it wish to protect the Panama canal; and if the first is true, does it intend to civilize them by occupying them with soldiers?" asked the professor.

"To answer your question I should have to make generalizations I do not care to make," the general said. "I don't like the tone of your questions, nor their insinuations and I take it that you are insulting the government I represent and the uniform I wear."

"It happens that I wore the same uniform," said Professor Allen, "and I do not mean it as an insult."

"I consider it such," said the general. "There are ladies here, but I would be glad to argue with you, or have a discussion with you or have a fight with you."

The conference concludes its sessions with a meeting today.

EFFICIENT TERM PROMISED BOARD BY NEW SHERIFF

Asks Supervisors for Recommendations for Deputy Appointments

An honest and efficient administration was promised Outagamie county by Sheriff John Lappen, who appeared before the Outagamie county board at its opening meeting of the February session at the courthouse Tuesday afternoon.

Sheriff Lappen told the supervisors they should not forget that he has never before been an officer, but that he is making a very careful study of his duties and expects to perform them to the satisfaction of all the voters of the county. He asked the supervisors to extend him their cooperation and pledged himself to assist them in any undertaking they desire.

A request for recommendations for appointments as deputy sheriffs was made by the sheriff. He pointed out that he is not personally acquainted with every district in the county as yet and that in naming his staff of deputies he needs their assistance so that only good men will carry stars.

"I do not believe deputy sheriffs should be mere figure heads carrying stars for personal benefits. I think that they should be ready for service whenever they are called upon," the sheriff said. "I want men with a good reputation and standing in their communities to serve as my deputies, but I cannot get them unless the supervisors will help me with the work."

The two members of the board were seated at Tuesday's session. They are Emmet O'Connor, taking the place of August Laabs from the town of Grand Chute and H. A. Rasmussen taking the place of James Thebo of Bear Creek. Mr. Laabs is spending the winter in the west and Mr. Thebo moved from Bear Creek and became ineligible.

The special committee, headed by Supervisor John Tracy, to investigate the county's needs in the way of a new courthouse or an addition to the present building, asked for an extension of time to make further inspections of courthouses in the state. The board granted an extension until the April session.

The board then approved a group of minor committee reports and adjourned until Tuesday morning.

Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer, Monday mailed a check for $6,381.08 to the secretary of state at Madison as the state's share of municipal and circuit court fines and circuit court suit taxes collected in Outagamie county last year. A new state law raised the county's share of fines collected under state laws from 2 to 10 per cent. The check included $5,381.25 for fines collected in municipal; $892.83 for fines collected in circuit court; and $109 for circuit court suit taxes. Presbyterian Church Built Half Century Ago

The congregation of Memorial Presbyterian church will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the completion of the church edifice at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, with a brief history of the church as a part of the service. Early in April the Home Builders will dramatize the church history in an historical pageant, which will be attended by members of the Winnebago Presbytery.

After elaborate preparations for the ceremony, the church building was dedicated Sunday afternoon, Feb. 16, 1880, with many visiting ministers and a number of parishioners who are still active in the church. The dedicatory prayer was offered by the Rev. Thomas G. Smith, D. D. of Canada, and the dedicatory sermon was preached by Dr. Gregory, president of Lake Forest college.

The building of the edifice was inspired chiefly by the bequest of $6,000 in the will of the late David Smith, and carried on by the indomitable work of the young pastor, Rev. J. B. Andrews. Rev. Andrews refused to accept money from Board of Home Missions, preferring to make the congregation self-supporting from the beginning. During the 50 years the church has never accepted any mission money, and for many years has subscribed money to the board of the church for national and foreign mission and benevolent and educational work.

Besides Rev. Andrews and the present pastor, the Rev. R. A. Garrison, seven pastors have served the church. The number includes the Reverends D. S. Banks, Edward P. Gardner, and John McCoy, deceased; Herbert M. Moore, now president of Lake Forest college; Leo Reid Burrows, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, Jamestown, N. Y.; Ernest W. Wright, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Menominee, Mich.; and Virgil E. Scott, dean of Missouri Valley college, Marshall, Mo.

The congregation has experienced a steady growth, and the church is financially in good condition. During anniversary year, which is now being observed, it is planned to pay off all financial obligations and to make improvements in the building and equipment. At present the ladies of the Aid Society are enlarging the kitchen and improving its facilities. During the year it is proposed to repaint and beautify the stained windows and renovate the organ.

Board Defers Vigilante Fund Vote Until November

REJECTS PLEA TO LOOK INTO HOME FOR POOR

Supervisors Learn Snow Removal Has Cost Only $12,700 to Date

The county board this morning adopted a resolution recommending appropriation of $1,500 at its November session for the establishment of a community guard system, rejected a proposal to have the chairman of the board appoint a committee to investigate the feasibility of establishing a county poor home and hospital and learned in a report from Frank Appleton, highway commissioner, that snow removal up to Monday had cost the county $12,700.

The board also was asked to consider a proposal of G. Koch, registrar of deeds, to place his office on a salary basis beginning March 1, for the balance of his term which expires early next January. This proposal was referred to the finance committee and district attorney for investigation.

With but little discussion the supervisors adopted a report from a special committee which recommended that the county vigilante system be established with an appropriation of $1,500 but that the appropriation should not be made until next November because the county needed all the money in the general fund at present.

SMITH OBJECTS

A minority report read by F. O. Smith, Hortonville, a member of the committee who objected to the vigilante system, outlined his objections. He charged that the appointment of a special group of deputies would make it possible for the sheriff to build up a strong political machine which would practically assure his reelection. Smith also claimed that since under this vigilante system the county would carry insurance on the special guards it would be an unfair system because the other deputies would not be covered by insurance. He said if the special guards were to be covered by insurance then all deputies should be given the same privilege.

It also would be unfair, Mr. Smith said, to ask the vigilantes to serve without pay. He said if they weren't paid they probably would turn their attention to other channels. As an illustration he said they might make traffic arrests for the fees this work would net them.

FEARS SHOOTINGS

The vigilante system also might increase the danger of accidental shootings, Mr. Smith said, if irresponsible persons were chosen for the positions. He suggested that inasmuch as the sheriff already had the power to appoint as many deputies as he needs that he should go ahead and organize the vigilantes without having them equipped. Then when the organization has been completed, Mr. Smith said, it will be possible to purchase the equipment. Mr. Smith was the only supervisor voting against the committee's resolution.

The supervisor from Hortonville also was unsuccessful in his efforts to have the board instruct its chairman to appoint a committee of five to confer with Judge Fred V. Heinemann on the matter of establishing a county poor home and hospital. Only four other supervisors, Ester Kneeland, M. Ryan and Mack, voted with Mr. Smith in favor of the proposition.

A report from Mr. Appleton indicated that snow removal this winter was far below what the county had spent up to this time in 1929. At the February session of the board in 1929 it was necessary to appropriate another $15,000 for snow removal work because the initial appropriation of $25,000 had been exhausted. This year Mr. Appleton's report showed the county has a balance of $12,425 left from the original appropriation of $25,000. In 1929 it was necessary to make an additional appropriation of $11,000 at the April session, making a total of $51,000 in that year.

Expenditures this year for snow removal were as follows: Labor, $7,594.38 and oil, $1,610.11; miscellaneous supplies, including snow fence and posts, repairs to plows, etc., $2,364.18; repairs to various machines where county plows have been stationed, $598.10.

VOLE ON LEASE

Despite the objection of Supervisor Smith, Hortonville, the board has instructed the building and grounds committee to grant a lease on the county workhouse property in the town of Grand Chute for two years to the present tenants with an option to buy it at the end of that time for $5,000. Mr. Smith wanted the board to hold the property to be used in case the board decided to establish a county poor home and hospital.

The board also voted to have the building and grounds committee engage a night watchman for the county courthouse. Supervisor John Tracy pointed out that this safeguard has been necessary for some time as the county property is too valuable to remain unguarded every night.

EARN COMMEMORATION

A letter from H. A. Schmitz, president of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, commended the county highway committee and Frank Appleton, highway commissioner, for their splendid cooperation with that body during the past year.

A resolution from the highway department asking for an additional appropriation of $5,000 for building an addition at the county garage was laid over until April. Members of the committee pointed out that the cost of erecting the building, based on bids opened Monday, would exceed $17,000. The original appropriation for this work, made last November, was $11,325.

LINCOLN STORIES ARE RECALLED ON DATE OF BIRTHDAY

The familiar stories of "Honest Abe" working arithmetic problems on a shovel in the light of a candle, of his long hours of toil to pay for the loss of his father in the rain, of his rise to the presidency of a great nation, of his Gettysburg address, and of his great understanding of men were revived in the minds of all Americans today, the anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth.

Flags were unfurled at many homes and throughout the business section of Appleton, and in the schools many patriotic programs of songs, stories, recitations and dramatization were presented.

RAILROAD COMPANY HAS BIG INTEREST IN BOY SCOUT WORK

Organize 70 Troops to Further Safety Work Along Its Lines

Safety first work furthered by boy scouts, as well as the training afforded the youth of a community by the existence of a scout troop, has been recognized by the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad company, which maintains a special department for the purpose of organizing troops along its line, according to company officials.

Working in conjunction with school officials, clergymen, the American legion and other citizens, about 70 troops have been organized in the past few years by A. W. Smallen, special representative of the vice president of the Milwaukee road.

The railroad's interest in scout work is not altruistic, but a far-sighted business policy, according to Mr. Smallen.

"Our road has more than 50,000 employees in 1,500 communities served by its 11,000 miles of line and must draw on the youth of the country to maintain its personnel," he said. Lads who have been trained as boy scouts will make courteous and dependable employees. They know how to avoid accidents to themselves and others, and their moral influence will strengthen the railroad organization. The youth who has been a good scout is good material for a good railroad.

Scout troops are enlisted to aid the railroad in discouraging children from playing in and about railroad yards, and in other safety measures, he stated.

PUBLICITY BODY APPOINTED BY HOME MERCHANTS

Will Reveal Conditions as They Really Exist, Directors Decide

"Let's lay our cards on the table and reveal conditions exactly as they are, and then, if there's any knocking to be done, let disinterested persons do it after they've become acquainted with the facts."

This was the prevailing sentiment of the Appleton Home Merchants association's board of directors which met at Hotel Northern Tuesday evening to name a publicity committee, and to discuss plans for a mass meeting and a subsequent membership campaign.

Ten men were elected to the committee. Their names were not made public, but they will represent the following mercantile divisions: Groceries, meats, furniture, general stores, shoes, hardware, jewelry, drugs, ready-to-wear and bakeries.

This publicity committee will meet after a dinner at Hotel Northern at 6:30 Thursday evening to discuss general policy and plan of campaign. A chairman will be elected at the meeting.

At a round table discussion directors pointed out what they called outstanding evils of the chain store system. Specific instances of short-weight and smaller-than-standard sized packages sold in certain chain stores were cited by various members, each of whom declared himself in a position to substantiate his statement. Another charge made against chain stores was that certain commodities were advertised as "specials" at below cost prices, but that the advertiser's supply was deliberately limited to a very small quantity of the product in question. Thus, it was claimed, the chain store quickly disposed of the advertised goods, and informed the remaining customers that, owing to the rush, its supply had been exhausted. The purported short-weight and short-measure abuse is disappearing because of widespread publicity, the director stated.

Stephen Balliet, president of the association read a letter which he wrote to United States Senator John J. Blaine, calling his attention to the controversy, and seeking to enlist his aid against a further spread of the chain store system.

A mass meeting of Appleton merchants and others interested in preserving and encouraging the home-owned store probably will be held early during the coming week.

A number of automobile and tractors, as well as the building, were destroyed and the entire business district was threatened.

Lincoln's Letters Put On Display At College

Two letters written by Abraham Lincoln and directed to Major General Sherman were placed on exhibit at the Lawrence college library today. A fine steel engraving of Lincoln, published shortly after his assassination, is also on display. The valuable originals, loaned for exhibit by Mrs. John Eastman, will be in the college library through the month of February.

The two letters, written on official memorandum stationery bearing the mark of the executive mansion, are dated September 20, and October 22, 1864. The first is a note of felicitation to the Union general which reads: "Have just heard of your great victory. God bless you all, officers and men. Strongly inclined to come up and see you." (Signed) A. Lincoln.

Following the marked successes of Sheridan in the Shenandoah valley, President Lincoln wrote: "With great pleasure I tender to you and your brave army the thanks of the nation and my personal admiration and gratitude for the month's operations in the Shenandoah valley, and especially for the splendid work of October 19, 1864. The letter is signed 'Your old servant, Abraham Lincoln.' The angular but highly legible handwriting of Lincoln is an interesting feature of the letters which are well preserved due to the excellent grade of rag paper used as official stationery by the president. The steel engraving, is taken from a Millar and Mathews photograph.

KOHLER MAPS BADGER PLANS FOR BUILDING

Over 3 Million Will Be Spent on 13 Projects, Master Builders Told

Madison—(P)—In a speech delivered to the annual convention of the Wisconsin Master Builders here today, Governor Kohler voiced optimism for the building program in Wisconsin.

He told the builders that the budget director has advised him that incoming monies available for the general fund are running ahead of anticipation, making possible the construction of a gymnasium and power house for the Milwaukee State Teachers' college.

The governor listed 13 projects which are now being constructed or will be constructed during his administration. The total estimated cost for the projects is $2,182,000.

Governor Kohler attributed the decrease in construction during 1929 largely to high money rates.

"Since the stock market break," the governor said, "money at reasonable rates has been released to take care of the legitimate needs of the country and this will, no doubt, have a beneficial effect on all building, particularly residential."

The 13 state building projects listed by the governor and their estimated cost are:

LIST OF PROJECTS
University of Wisconsin field house, $39,000; engineering building, $600,000; children's hospital, Madison, $300,000; state office building, Madison, $600,000; two wings to buildings for hospital of the criminal insane, Wausau, $250,000; industrial school for girls, Oregon, $247,000.

Power plant and equipment at public school, Sparta, $90,000; equipment, Southern Colony and Training school, Union Grove, $75,000; Milwaukee Teachers' college gymnasium and power house, $250,000; hospital, Grand Army Home for Veterans, $175,000; power plant, State Teachers' college, Stevens Point, $8,000; workshop, State Teachers' college, River Falls, $25,000; addition to gymnasium, State Teachers' college, LaCrosse, $65,000.

D. Harry Smith, secretary of the Kenosha branch of the Master Builders, responded to the governor's address and paid tribute to Governor Kohler's "constructive accomplishments in behalf of the people of Wisconsin."

Prohibition Foes Take Stand In First Inquiry

would necessitate a two-thirds vote in each branch of the congress. After that, he explained, three-fourths of the state must concur in the action of congress.

METHOD OF PROCEDURE
Should congress reject a resolution proposing revision of the constitution, Graham added, it then would not be submitted to the states. In the event an amendment to the constitution should be submitted to the states, he said it could be approved by the state legislature or by a convention convened in each state if so directed by congress.

"The convention method, which would require delegates to be elected on the issue of amendment, would furnish the opportunity for a referendum, so much desired and asked for," he said. "That method of ratification would furnish the only way a referendum can ever be had under the law."

"This hearing will not interfere with President Hoover's Crime commission, but rather be in aid thereof."

"No one wants the restoration of the old conditions or the saloon," Graham continued. "We may as well ask, cannot control and regulations of liquor traffic supply the place of prohibition? What use of more laws, drastic and partaking of the spirit of vengeance, rather than justice? Natural liberty of the individual has never been totally surrendered to society, but only so much as is needed to preserve the organized entity."

MUST KEEP FREEDOM

"Freedom of decision as to what one may drink, eat or wear, is as fundamental as freedom of belief in religion. Like in the delegation of powers to the federal government by the sovereign states, all not delegated were reserved."

"Individual man has a large reservoir of powers. Only when one's choice by overt acts breaks the peace or injures society can the individual decision be assailed and then only to punish the overt acts."

"Behold the action of the Canada provinces which after many experiments have finally adopted the so called 'Canadian system' all except Prince Edward Island. Only Finland and the United States stand out as dry nations. Cannot some system be devised to control and not prohibit that will lessen the evils portrayed? The use of wine has been censured throughout the ages. Had God wished automations he could have changed the nature of the grapes or destroyed the human appetite. He wanted character. He wanted the man who met temptations and conquered."

"Let us reason together, not with the fanatic; for he is the foe of religion as well as individual liberty. Not with him, no, but with broad-minded men and women of every faith and belief and try to relieve our country through reason and by conceiving a new system—one not founded on the bluegen and a violation of men's conscientious convictions regarding drink."

$49,490 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRES IN CITY IN 1929

Fire Chief's Report Shows
Big Decrease Over Losses
in 1928

Appleton's fire loss in 1929 was $49,490.06, a decrease of almost $170,000 over 1928, when the fire loss totaled $218,909.65 according to the annual report of George P. McGilgan, fire chief.

The chief's report shows the department answered 256 alarms in 1929, an increase over 1928, when there was a total of 209 alarms. In 1928 the department answered 11 false alarms while in 1929 there were only six of these alarms.

The actual fire loss in 1929 to persons residing in the city was only about $7,000 as the fire chief's report shows that $42,000 of the damage was covered by insurance. Loss to building in 1929 was $33,069.58 while the loss to contents was $16,645.48.

The total value of the buildings where fires occurred was $4,438,468.15 while the insurance on this property was $3,657,806.93.

Frame buildings are most susceptible to fires, the report indicates, as 143 of the fires to which the department was called in 1929, was to buildings of that type. Thirty-nine fires were reported from brick and stone buildings while only two were reported from concrete buildings and four from concrete block buildings. The department was called to 65 fires other than fires in buildings.

Chief McGilgan's report shows there are 6,185 buildings in Appleton of which 5,371 were frame buildings. The city has only a single fire proof building. Twelve buildings are constructed of reinforced concrete and 15 are iron clad structures. There are 98 concrete block buildings while there are 218 buildings unclassified.

HOUSE MAY BOOST OLEOMARGARINE TAX

Representatives Are Encouraged by Victory in Butte
Substitute Bill

BY BUDY A. BLACK
Washington — Encouraged by the overwhelming majority given by the House of Representatives to the bill placing the new butter substitutes under the oleomargarine laws, members of the House are now considering taking steps to increase the tax on oleomargarine.

The present law levies a tax of one-fourth cent a pound on uncolored oleomargarine and 10 cents a pound on colored oleomargarine. If the Senate passes the bill passed by the House Thursday, this same tax will be applied to the new "colored cooking compounds" recently put on the market as a substitute for butter. The Senate is expected to pass the bill and the President is expected to approve it.

The next step advocated by the Wisconsin congressmen and congressmen from other dairy states will be a bill to tax all butter substitutes 2 or 3 cents a pound. This may sound like a reduction from the 10-cent oleomargarine tax, but as a matter of fact, only 15,000,000 pounds of colored oleomargarine are sold a year while 300,000,000 pounds of uncolored oleomargarine are sold. Oleomargarine manufacturers avoid the higher tax by selling their product uncolored but accompanied by a capsule of coloring which the purchaser mixes with the oleo to give it the color of butter.

This means that the present revenue from the oleomargarine tax is $1,500,000 from the 10 cent tax and $750,000 from the one-fourth-cent tax. If the entire 315,000,000 pounds were taxed at 2 cents a pound, the revenue would be $6,300,000.

FRANCE AND SUBMARINES
The United States and Great Britain are to be commended for bluntly proposing to the London conference abolition of the submarine. On the other hand, France is not to be criticized for rejecting the proposal. It comes down to a situation like this: England is to reduce her navy or to restrict new construction, provided it is done as she wishes and confined to the classes she may designate. The same thing is true of the United States, although to a lesser degree. France looks at her defense requirements from a different standpoint and naturally wishes limitations and privileges other than those desired by the United States and England. Likewise, Italy and Japan.

France is willing to abolish the submarine on certain conditions, including an absolute guarantee of freedom of the seas. These conditions England is apparently unwilling to concede. France feels that the best protection nations with inferior navies have against nations with superior navies is the submarine. In all probability she is right. Each nation has a defense problem peculiar to itself. England's is different from that of the United States, and yet there is less difference between these two countries than others over the questions before the conference. This, we believe, is because of mutual assumption that they are wholly unlikely to engage in war. France, barring the United States, has less assurance of peace with the rest of the contracting parties. There are dangerous potentialities all about her, Italy, England and Germany. It seems to us that the larger and fairer part of statesmanship for England is to make greater concessions than are requested of France, and of course it is to be taken for granted the United States would subscribe to this.

It would be a splendid thing if submarines could be totally abolished. Enormous savings in expenditures would be effected both on the submarine and other classes of vessels which are built to combat them. They represent an inhuman method of conducting warfare, just as the unrestricted use of gas, which would wipe out tens of thousands of human beings at one stroke, is considered diabolical. Ultimately the same development of the airplane as an offensive weapon may be subjected to similar objection. Its potentialities for savagery are incalculable. If submarines are not abolished what will be the result? Will the rules adopted be obeyed or not? The probability is they will not be obeyed. International law recognized at the time was constantly violated by Germany and England in the World war, both in the use of surface vessels and submarines. If to win meant the employment of submarines against merchant vessels in violation of an agreement to humanize undersea warfare, we have no doubt what the decision would be.

When we come down to a final analysis of naval reduction there is a great deal to be said for the French contention that security guarantees of some character ought to take the place of naval reduction and weakened national defense. The theory that reduction is relative is all very good, and in its broad aspects is entirely correct, but like every other principle it has its exceptions. It must inevitably favor some nation at the expense of another. To counter-balance this, and in fact pave the way to wholesale disarmament, some means of insuring and enforcing peace must be devised. The world will have to come to this in the end. It may be by moral agencies alone or it may be by force under joint action. Even if the submarine question is settled by an attempt to humanize its use, the London conference is making real progress toward armament limitation that promises much for the future. Substantial reduction may not be brought about, but extension of a naval holiday for a number of years is something gained, and in all probability we shall find at its termination a world demand for real disarmament that will be irresistible.

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY
Today is Lincoln's birthday. Once again we laud his name with panegyrics. Our politicians of all parties tell their followers that if Lincoln were living today he would do as they are doing, would belong to the party they belong to and would advocate the absurd as well as the sound things they advocate. Mr. Lincoln's name is used to cover a multitude of sins, a great amount of hypocrisy.
But above this false pretense and often insincere worship his name and character stand out in bold relief as the most striking signpost of American history. Without Lincoln this nation would have been divided, but, as Emil Ludwig points out, this achievement, great as it was, does not warrant the exalted place he occupies in his own country and throughout the world. That is explainable not by his achievements but by his character.
It is the nobility, the humanness, the charity, the virtues of his life that will forever distinguish him rather than his political genius or his deeds. The martial and political glory of men soon fades away, as time is measured by centuries. The world knows Plato today better than it knows Alexander the Great or Hannibal. Lincoln's name is with the immortals because of his greatness of soul, his gentleness and firmness and his extraordinary moral discernment and courage. He will always live because his life and his personality will always be a guide to the millions who are striving for both light and right.

ENFORCEMENT WHERE IT BELONGS
The house has passed without a roll-call the administration's bill transferring enforcement of prohibition from the treasury department to the department of justice. It was approved substantially without amendment. There is hardly any doubt the measure will be passed by the senate, although it probably will have to wait until tariff revision is disposed of. The wets and dries are in agreement on the broad proposition that enforcement properly belongs in the department of justice. There were some differences over details, but they are inconsequential.
The senate really has no alternative but to follow the administration's recommendations. The propriety and logic of having the attorney-general administer prohibition enforcement are not even debatable. There never was a sound reason for turning it over to the treasury department. It was one of the mistakes often made in government that seem almost childish after experience has proven the fact. That enforcement can and will be better carried on under the change goes without saying. The treasury department never was interested in enforcement except insofar as it affected the revenues. It may be that we shall have presidents and attorneys-general who are more than indifferent to prohibition, as we already have had, but that argues nothing as to the desirability of making the department of justice responsible for enforcement.
It is evident that Mr. Hoover is going to make a determined effort to try out bona fide enforcement so far as it may be reasonably attempted. Whether he construes his election as a mandate to follow this course or whether he feels it is a high moral duty attaching to the presidency does not matter. Neither do his personal views on the subject, which we suspect are more liberal than many Republicans imagine. It is a policy the correctness of which is hardly open to question. If events convince him that enforcement is not practicable he may before the close of his term advocate modification. While we would not expect to see such a recommendation in the short space of four years, if he is reelected it is not impossible or even improbable within the period of eight years.

In Toledo, the other day, a woman kept a crowd breathless with suspense while she pondered, poised on the edge of a fourth floor window, whether or not to commit suicide by jumping. No matter what Senator Borah and Senator LaFollette say about President Hoover from now on, the fact remains that the president has been fishing in Florida and that he caught a fish. The last time ex-President Coolidge went fishing, all he got was a couple of sponges. No wonder he isn't president any more.
And while we're talking about Mr. Coolidge, we are reminded about his 599 word history of the United States. It is understood that he is boiling down our laws to a mere two words—“Behave Yourself.”

Today's Anniversary
LINCOLN'S BIRTH
On Feb. 12, 1809, Abraham Lincoln, 16th president of the United States, was born in a log cabin in Hardin County, Kentucky.
As a boy, Lincoln knew the hardships and privations of frontier life. All his schooling combined would probably not have made up more than one year.
After serving as a captain in the Black Hawk War, Lincoln ran for the legislature. Following his defeat and the failure of an attempt a little later to run a general store, he began the study of law.
In 1833 he was finally elected to the legislature and was reelected two years later. About two years before his election to Congress he married Mary Todd.
As a representative in Congress, Lincoln found in the Senate a great rival in Stephen A. Douglas, whom he engaged in several historic public debates on slavery.
Nominated at Chicago in 1860 for president, Lincoln won the election. He was in office but six weeks when the Civil War broke out. Shortly after the battle of Antietam, in which the Union forces had the upper hand, the president issued his famous Emancipation Proclamation declaring he would, on Jan. 1, 1863, free the slaves of all the states then or thereafter in rebellion.
Lincoln was reelected, but his second term was cut short when he was mortally wounded by an assassin's bullet while he sat at Ford's Theater watching a play.

FOUR SCORE AND SEVEN YEARS AGO OUR FATHERS BROUGHT FORTH ON THIS CONTINENT, A NEW NATION, CONCEIVED IN LIBERTY AND DEDICATED TO THE PROPOSITION THAT ALL MEN ARE CREATED EQUAL.
NOW WE ARE ENGAGED IN A GREAT CIVIL WAR, TESTING WHETHER THAT NOTION OR ANY NOTION SO CONCEIVED AND SO DEDICATED CAN LONG ENDURE. WE ARE MET ON A GREAT BATTLE FIELD OF THAT WAR. WE HAVE COME TO DEDICATE A PORTION OF THAT FIELD AS A FINAL RESTING PLACE FOR THOSE WHO HERE GAVE THEIR LIVES THAT THE NATION MIGHT LIVE. IT IS ALTOGETHER FITTING AND PROPER THAT WE SHOULD DO THIS, BUT, IN A LARGER SENSE, WE CANNOT DEDICATE—WE CANNOT CONSECRATE—WE CANNOT HALLOW THIS GROUND.
THE BRAVE MEN LIVING AND DEAD WHO STRUGGLED HERE HAVE CONSECRATED IT PARABOLICALLY. POWER TO ADD OR DETRACT. THE WORLD WILL LITTLE NOTE NOR LONG REMEMBER WHAT WE SAY HERE, BUT IT CAN NEVER FORGET WHAT THEY DID HERE. IT IS FOR US THE LIVING, RATHER, TO BE DEDICATED HERE TO THE UNFINISHED WORK WHICH THEY WHO FOUGHT HERE HAVE THUS FAR SO NOBLY ADVANCED.
IT IS RATHER FOR US TO BE HERE DEDICATED TO THE GREAT TASK REMAINING BEFORE US—THAT FROM THOSE HONOURED DEAD WE TAKE INCREASED DEVOTION TO THAT CAUSE FOR WHICH THEY GAVE THE LAST FULL MEASURE OF DEVOTION—THAT WE HERE HIGHLY RESOLVE THAT THESE DEAD SHALL NOT HAVE DIED IN VAIN—THAT THIS NATION, UNDER GOD, SHALL HAVE A NEW BIRTH OF FREEDOM—AND THAT GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE, FOR THE PEOPLE, SHALL NOT PERISH FROM THIS EARTH!

SOME PROOF FROM THE PROOF-ROOM
In a corner room 25 feet square and 10 feet high three steam radiators are ranged along the outside walls and in each of these walls there are two windows. On one of the other sides of the room a swing door opens into a very large room with a very high ceiling. Above this door is a transom from which the glass has been removed. At night six or seven persons, with a frequent additional population of from one to four mice, sit at desks in this room (the proofroom).
The foregoing facts introduced what appeared to be a novel in manuscript. I was interested at once—that is, when I saw it come from the proofroom of a printing concern. I may be indiscrete, even fearless, when dealing with some folks, but by gum you can bet your shirt if you have one left from the recent market debacle, that I know how to grovel to the proofreaders. So I reached for paper and pencil and sketched the proofroom as the letter described it; had an eager notion we might make a cross to mark the spot where the proofreader's corpse lay horribly crushed. That transom with the glass missing suggested a ready means of ingress for a trained assassin, and also a ready means of egress after the good work was done, and without leaving any skirt studs, scented handkerchiefs, wisps of distinctively colored hair or other messages clutched in the victim's fist. Dear me, I must try to squander less time on these accursed murder yarns.
It seems the inhabitants of this proofroom are sharply divided into the proper means of ventilation. Some want a window or two kept open; others object to the inevitable draft. . . . and so it goes, for several chapters. It is with a delightful sense of satisfaction that I edit and condense the communication from the proofroom. Here, then, is the gist of it.
One day thermometer on a desk showed a temperature of 70 degrees F., but at floor level the temp. was only 68. Might not this tend to chill the feet and legs of workers and lessen their efficiency, if a temperature of 68 or so is taken as the ideal for efficiency? Then on a certain Wednesday night the scribe's feet and legs became chilled, and shortly thereafter, as usual with him under the circumstances, a sore throat developed. Then on Thursday morning a waiter in a restaurant mistook his nose for an ear and poured into it a funny story from a range of two feet; and later in the morning a barber blew a carlike breath directly into his nostrils. That night—
Ho, hum. This is far from being a mystery story with a diverting plot.
The scribe went on having the sore throat etc. by reason of which he refrained from work for five nights. I fancy that must have been last September—I know there were several days in succession when the proofreaders didn't change congenial hip disease to congenial hip disease.
At that, the scribe is only a little less antiquated in this notion than were the doctors of the last century who observed the chill that commonly marks the onset of pneumonia, septicaemia and similar infections, and inferred that the chill caused the illness.
For the peace and amity of the proofroom, or any similar place, I recommend the use of a window screen of unbleached muslin. This admits fresh air and desirable humidity and daylight but excludes drafts, wind, dust, snow, or rain. It is washable.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Buttermilk Is Nourishing
Is buttermilk nourishing? I can digest it, but not sweet milk. I am underweight and would like to gain a few pounds. (Miss K. O. H.)
Answer—It is equivalent to skimming milk in nutritive value, and that is just half as nourishing as sweet milk—that is, a quart of buttermilk or skim milk is equivalent to a pint of sweet milk. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for instructions for gaining weight.
A Dead Issue
In a reply to one of your correspondents some time ago you referred to finger surgery as a “passing fad.” My son, who is partly deaf, contemplates a finger surgery operation in hope of betterment. Would you approve of such treatment? (B. J. A.)
Answer—No. It is now a dead issue. It never was more than a scheme to gain some free publicity. Any doctor may do “finger surgery” if that is sufficient, but the finger is a crude instrument for the removal of adenoid tissue, as a rule.
Wanted: Furnace Man
Defect in furnace causes it to throw off coal gas all the time. Are there likely to be ill effects from this, with two windows open? Would it cause one to sleep heavily for one to two hours in the afternoon? (Mrs. D. H. C.)
Answer—The open windows would dilute the concentration of poison in the air, but why take chances? Have the furnace repaired—that's the best economy.
Club Foot
Baby 11 months old has a club foot. We want to have it straightened, but a doctor advises to wait until he is 2 years old. . . . (Mrs. M. S.)
Answer—The best result is obtained, as a rule, by the active use of the corrective treatment begins immediately after birth. Perhaps the baby in this instance is too feeble to undergo treatment at present.

The Tynmites
By Hal Cochran
“O H, you're a farmer,” Clowdy said. “Well, Master Farmer, go ahead and do the wondrous things that you are certain you can do. You have a little hoe and rake and there is heaps of ground to break. Please make some funny things grow, while we all are watching you.”
The Scarecrow then said, “Mercy me! You talk as foolish as a berry. It takes a long, long time to make things come up from the ground. If this queer man can turn the trick of making this come up real, I'll then confess that quite a wondrous fellow you have found.”
The farmer laughed and said, “Now, boys, your talking just makes lots of noise. Why don't you all just sit right down and I'll put on my show. I know it will surprise you all, but it won't seem soon. Not at all. Just pay real close attention and I'll make some queer things grow.”
The Tynmites gathered in a group and watched the queer old fellow stoop and scrape his hoe across the ground. And then he used his spade to dig a bit. He worked real fast. A half an hour went slipping past and then the Tynmites saw that quite a garden had been made.
All of a sudden, from the ground some little things came twisting round. “Now watch,” exclaimed the farmer, “and a thrilling sight you'll see. These things are toothstools. Sure enough. You'll shortly find that that's no bluff. Before I'm through, I'm sure that you will all believe in me.”
The little toothstools grew and grew. The next thing that the Tynmites knew, they jumped up from the ground and were as active as could be. Said Scouty, “I'm surprised for once. Just watch them! See every funny stunt.” This time every toothstool was dancing, full of glee.
(The toothstools are scared away in the next story.)

Seen And Heard In New York
BY RICHARD MARSHOCK
New York. Sidally kibitzers who gaze at the most trivial scenes, get a lot of glee out of the plight of motorists caught in the police drive against overtime parking.
The amusement is afforded by the surprised embarrassment of a car's owner when he shows up just as a truck of the street cleaning department prepares to haul away the offending vehicle.
If an automobile is parked for a longer period than the law allows, a patrolman calls the wagon, or, specially, a truck equipped with a derrick. The car is lifted off its front wheels and towed to the district garage of the street cleaning department.
There the owner may reclaim it after paying a $10 fine at the police station.
No summons is issued, even when the owner comes upon the cop discharging his car's removal. Fines are in vain and the offer of a bribe, as occasionally happens, only outrages the officer, who invariably has a crowd of pedestrians about him. Abuse on the part of the owner makes the fine heavier.
The only thing he can do is climb up with the truck driver and the policeman and ride to the nearest station house to bail out his motor.
Often, of course, the owner returns to find the car already gone. His first act is usually to report it stolen and the bad news then is broken to him.
SERVANT READING
It's an old gag about the chauffeur in a parked car who reads a highway magazine while his mistress looks at a pink picture paper. But here are two stories that are new in substance, if not in theme.
An inquisitive guest at one of the smart hotels, in passing a linen closet on his floor, noticed the door open. Impelled by his curiosity, he peered inside. On a shelf, among the towels and pillow cases, was a red round copy of “The Uncertain Trumpet,” by A. S. M. Hutchinson. A little farther on he came to another open door. Inside were two chambermaids at their work.
“Pardon me,” said the amateur investigator. “Does that book in the closet belong to either of you?”
“If you mean that red book,” replied one of the maids, “yes, it belongs to me.”
KNEW HER HEROINE
Emil Ludwig once saw an elevator operator reading his biography of Napoleon. But our other story is told by a Park avenue woman. A new maid dusting in her dressing room came to a pair of miniature portraits.
“Isn't that Josephine?” inquired the maid, pointing to one of the pictures.
“Yes,” said the mistress, somewhat surprised.
“Then it must have been painted soon after she met Napoleon,” the maid continued, “because in her later years she was in such poor health that she could not have been that pretty.”
She could have floored the mistress with the dust cloth.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON
BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington—Ever eager as Republicans and Democrats alike in the house of representatives to do honor to their smiling and genial speaker—Nick Longworth.
Periodic tributes to him on the floor have now become pretty much of a habit on the part of members. Nevertheless, it appeared to the boys in the press gallery that Speaker Nick's countenance showed more than mere satisfaction the other day when the house paid its latest tribute to him.
If he didn't appreciate that one more than any of the countless others that have come before (and they have sat in on them all), then they don't know their Longworth.
FROM MR. HOWARD
The long-haired, frock-coated, and of a brusque had the floor. The idea was to get across to the speaker the fact that the house was in accord with the Longworth action in refusing the President's request for a joint congressional committee to deal with the law enforcement problem.
For 15 minutes the venerable Howard bestowed his praise lavishly.
“This magnificent personality,” he cried, “during all his long, useful, and brilliant career has believed unflinchingly and advocated eloquently that this great republic rests upon a true foundation, the three principal stones of which are the red granite of the legislative, the brown stone of the executive, and the emerald marble of the judiciary.”
It was a stern test, said Howard, that the speaker faced when the President made his request.
“A weak man would have followed the line of least resistance, but there is no weakness in the magnificent personality I am now discussing.”
MODEST
In this manner he talked on and on. There were smiles of approval on the faces of every representative in the chamber. Speaker Nick sat deep in his chair on the dais, wearing his most modest expression.
Howard climaxed his speech by offering a resolution calling upon the house to “approve and applaud the splendid spirit of pure Americanism which animated Nicholas Longworth.”
The house met the resolution with a roar of applause and every member jumped to his feet.
“And then, Mr. Speaker,” Howard cried enthusiastically after the applause had subsided, “if the rules would permit, knowing that in all polite parliamentary circles it is never proper for a presiding officer to put to the house a resolution or a motion affecting himself, I would relieve my speaker of that embarrassment and say to my colleagues: “Those who favor the resolution will make it known by saying ‘aye.’”

A chorus of “ayes” fairly reverberated through the chamber. And amid laughter and more applause, Howard gravely announced: “Mr. Speaker, the resolution is unanimously adopted.”

They called him “Honest Abe.” They tell how he walked three miles to return a few pennies of over-change: that's the kind of man he was.

SECRET TAX LISTS UNDERLYING CAUSE OF CHICAGO'S FALL

System Gave Politicians Chance to Graft by Jug- gling Figures

BY BRUCE CATTION
Chicago — "Keep taxation and your real property assessments entirely out of politics unless you want to follow Chicago to financial chaos."

If any other city, looking on Chicago's bankruptcy in awed wonder, would like to know how to avoid a repetition of Chicago's fate, there's the answer. It comes from John O. Rees, director of the Joint Commission on Real Estate Valuation, a Chicago citizens' organization that has been trying for months to get Chicago and Cook county back to some sort of financial stability.

Rees knows the subject from end to end. More than a year ago he was employed as an expert by the Joint Legislative Revenue Committee of the Illinois legislature, which studied the situation here thoroughly; and the one word with which he sums up Chicago's present difficulties is—"Politics."

Chicago and Cook county, between them, are more than $275,000,000 in the hole. Bills are going unpaid, employees aren't getting their salaries, essential services are being endangered. The visitor from the outside, naturally, has two questions. First he wants to know "How come?" And second, he wants to know, "What can my city do to avoid getting in a similar fix?"

Three specific causes stand out of the tangled political web in which Chicago now finds itself. 1.—For many years, the Chicago tax lists were secret, thus offering wonderful opportunities to grafting politicians to get assessments reduced without public knowledge.

2.—Two taxation boards assumed equal powers and threw the entire system of taxation into one grand mess.

3.—To gain political advantages, representatives of the urban district—the rich "loop"—and of the suburbs have been endeavoring to get taxes for their respective constituents below fair levels.

"The job of assessing real estate here has been a political plaything, or tool, for years," Mr. Rees explains. "Cook county has two assessing bodies. There's the Board of Assessors, with five members, and the Board of Review, with three. In theory, the assessors make the original assessments and the other board reviews them to see that they're equitable. But in practice the boards have equal power. Each one does what the other is supposed to do. Each one makes and reviews assessments without consulting the other."

"In most states, property assessments are supposed to bear some definite relation to market value. In Chicago they don't. One piece of property will be assessed at 80 per cent of market value and an adjacent piece will be assessed at 20 per cent. There's no uniformity whatever and no equality whatever. Political pull has been the big thing. If you had it, you got a low assessment. If you didn't, you didn't."

This inequality went unnoticed for a long time because of the policy of secrecy. Many property owners paying high taxes were led to believe their taxes were low and didn't try to find out what their neighbors were paying. Big Bill Thompson, the builder, was mayor, his henchmen and friends filled the other jobs, the party war chests were full and the politicians were happy.

Every four years in Illinois all real property values must be reassessed, as a basis for the taxation of the next four years. That job was done here by Cook county's two boards in 1927. It was done in the usual style, which was like this:

A staff hired by the Board of Assessors wrote down assessments for every piece of property in the county. Then the Board of Assessors passed on these figures. If a citizen had a protest he made it, and his figure was changed—if he happened to be the right sort of person. Then the figures went to the Board of Review, which made further changes. Some of the figures quoted by the Joint Legislative Revenue Committee are enlightening.

Two identical apartment buildings in the same block got an initial valuation of $26,000 each. One valuation stayed as it was. The other was reduced to $6,000. The first owner paid $73 in taxes; the second paid $291.

Two identical apartment buildings in other block got an initial valuation of $25,000 apiece. The first figure went through unchanged. The second was cut to $7,000. The first owner paid $1212 in taxes; the second paid $332.

Another example: three identical apartments in the same block, each listed at $16,000 in the original assessments. Two went through unchanged, paying taxes of $776 apiece; the third owner got a cut from the Board of Review that made his taxes only $145.

You could cite instances like that all day. Orininal county assessment figures were finally reduced by more than $375,000,000.

Now this was all right, so long as nobody knew what his neighbor's assessment was. But early in 1928 the State Tax Commission ordered the county to publish the new 1927 assessment lists, in toto. Then the storm broke. The incredible favoritism that had prevailed was open for everyone to see. The newspapers hopped into things, printing pictures of identical properties with varying assessments. More than 20,000 citizens filed suit in the courts in protest.

Accordingly, in May of 1928 the Tax Commission ordered a complete reassessment of all Cook county real estate. And right there was where the trouble began. For it developed that this order automatically cancelled the 1927 assessment, just completed; and the 1927 assessment, in turn, automatically cancelled the preceding assessment; so that Cook county found itself without any assessed valuation for any of its property.

This, in turn, meant that no taxes could be collected until a new assessment had been completed.

"It was no use making a new assessment just like the old one," Mr. Rees says, "because if the old inequalities were repeated, the new assessment would be thrown out, just as the old one was. The job simply has got to be done right. But—"

That's it—that "but." Can it be divorced from politics? "How are you going to stay in power if you can't give reductions to the people who helped put you in power just so that they could get reductions?" the politicians ask.

Suburban land owners are protesting that the new assessment is going to boost their taxes and lower the taxes of owners in the Loop; and certain politicians are adding fuel to that complaint, seeing an opportunity to condemn the whole move for an equitable assessment by making it appear that big business is about to get away with something.

ation, under the late lamented 1927 assessment, was $3,553,328,853. The State Tax Commission has directed that in the new assessment, land be given 37 per cent of its true or market valuation. Real estate statisticians have figured that the county's new assessment, on this basis, would be $3,466,545,143—approximately $86,000,000 below the 1927 figures.

No politician is protesting against that reduction. But it happens that this new estimate cuts the assessed valuation within the city by over $425,000,000, and boosts the valuation outside of Chicago by $327,000,000.

So the reassessment hasn't been dashed yet. It is reported here that it may be finished by the first of June; but few believe it. Chicago and Cook county haven't collected any taxes for two years. Their income has been shut off. They have borrowed every dime they can borrow. Their income won't be resumed until the new assessment is finished—and no man can say when that will be.

TOMORROW: "Big Business" comes to the rescue . . . and an interview with Silas Strawn, chairman of the citizens' relief committee trying to pull Chicago out of the hole.

NEW SEASONING IMPROVES FOODS

Make It at Home With Two Familiar Ingredients

To make this new seasoning all that is necessary is sugar and salt. Mix them together—a pinch of salt to a dash of sugar—and a flavor is created that has no equal.

This combination of sugar and salt is ideal for all kinds of cookery. Vegetables such as tomatoes, carrots, cabbage, peas, spinach and corn take on new goodness when thus flavored. The familiar French dressing is also improved by this seasoning. In cooking chops, in making meat sauces or stews, the same holds true.

Many cooks keep a dish containing a mixture of salt and sugar on hand. The proportions can be varied to suit the taste, but equal parts of sugar and salt, or two parts salt to one part sugar, are the most commonly used.

The value of this new seasoning lies in the fact that it makes essential foods more palatable. Finicky children and adults who have no appetite will eat the food their systems require with relish when thus flavored. Doctors and dietitians approve this use of sugar. The inviting flavor increases the flow of gastric juices and as a result, the food is digested more quickly. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

The Story of Sue by MARGERY HALE © 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BARBARA's pearly eyes and Jack's keen gray ones met in a flash of wills. Then the man's relented. Whether it was chivalry or devotion, Sue didn't know. Another burst of thunder drowned their voices and the girls drew back instinctively. "It's foolish for everyone to run a risk," Ted Merryman took charge. "I know the mechanism of an automobile fairly well and if Sarah's willing to trust her new car to me, I'll take one of you men and get started. How about it, Miles?" Sue noticed that he tactfully eliminated Jack. "You'll take me?" Sarah's voice danced merrily into the tense atmosphere. "Love me, love my dog," you know. Only it's an automobile this time and it seems to have first place. "I'm coming along in case you need me," Miles answered Ted's question. "How about you Harry?" "I'm sticking to the ship," Harry answered. "Nancy and Barbara need a strong male protector and Jack's deserting." Already Jack was pulling on a slicker, Sue noticed. Her heart sang. Then he wasn't going to let Barbara lure him to a fireside retreat! "Harry, you're such a comfort," Barbara changed her tone and made it low and musical. "I'm awfully glad you aren't leaving me." Only Sue sensed Jack's sudden hesitation. Then he shook it off. "Get a coat, Sue. We're leaving right away." Sue and Jack ed the way, followed by Ted and Sarah, for Miles had been tactfully eliminated through Nancy Becker who insisted that four-hand bridge was the only diversion on such a night and Miles was needed at home. The road wound straight ahead for several miles before it turned and plunged down hill through a forest. The wind howled and the cars skidded madly. At one place, a small tree, which had fallen, had to be removed before the journey could be continued. Both men were soaked when they climbed back into their cars and started on the way. A sudden blinding glare made Sue swallow a little scream. Jack turned and smiled comfortingly. "You're game all right, Sue. I was a beast to bring you into such a storm. I never dreamed it was this bad or I'd have refused to let you come. I think I had better turn back and then go on alone." "No, oh, no. I love rainy nights and I'm not scared at all." The very fact that Jack was sitting with her, as they rode through the long, black night, made her safe, it seemed. She hoped he wasn't remembering another girl's fluted words and the challenge of her purple eyes. She turned to look back and the feeble yellow light far behind them showed where the other car was coming. "I hope Barbara understood," Jack said presently. "You think she did, don't you, Sue?" "Immediately all her gay dreams collapsed. "Of course she'll understand and if she doesn't you can explain easily," she said lightly. "Don't worry about it at all." "I won't." His voice was more cheerful. "You haven't any idea how much I rely on things you say, Sue. Say, isn't that a light ahead?"

More and More Colds Treated Externally

Demand for Vicks, Pioneer of "No Dosing" Method, Grows at Amazing Rate

A generation ago, when Vicks Vapo Rub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Best for Children Mothers especially appreciate Vicks, because it checks colds without risk of upsetting children's delicate stomachs. Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, "drawing out" tightness and soreness; and, at the same time, it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

Equally Good for Adults Year after year the demand for Vicks has grown until it is now the family standby for colds in more than 60 countries. Used largely at first for children's colds, actual use in millions of homes has proved it equally effective for adults.

Now "26" Million! To keep pace with this ever-growing demand, the famous Vicks slogan—"17 Million Jars Used Yearly," was raised to "21 Million" a short time ago. This figure, too, has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly"—a far for every family in the United States.

Wisconsin Humbles Marquette Cagers, 29 And 15

BADGER ATTACK PERFECT DESPITE MUCH OPPOSITION

Poser, New Guard, Leads in Offense With Five Long Baskets

BY STANLEY E. KALISH Associated Press Sports Writer
MADISON—(AP)—Exhibiting its new attack for the last lap of the Western conference race, Wisconsin's basketball five scored an easy 29 to 15 victory over Marquette here last night. The game was never in doubt after the first eight minutes. The Badgers led 13 to 7 at the half.

"Bob" Poser, started the game in place of Johnny Paul at guard, and led the Badger attack with five field goals, two of them swishing through the net from mid-floor. So consistent was Poser that he dropped three goals in as many shots, then missed one and added two more. He also had two shots that failed to connect late in the game.

Marquette led twice during the game, after Mathiesen had snared a rebound in the first minute. McElligott tied the count by dropping in two free throws, and Shipley sent the Hilltoppers ahead with a field goal from the center of the floor. Chmielewski tied the count on the most brilliant play of the game, dropping the ball in on a fast break, which saw Foster tip it to him. Marquette went ahead again 6 to 4, on Andrew's one-handed shot, but the Badgers then coasted away.

The teams met again in Milwaukee tomorrow night.

In a game between "B" teams of the two schools, a desperate second period rally after trailing 13 to 4 at the half gave the Marquette seconds a 20 to 18 victory.

WILSON CLEARED OF ASSAULT CHARGE

Court Throws Out $20,000 Damage Suit Against Cub Outfielder

Chicago—(AP)—Lewis "Hack" Wilson, fighting cock of the Chicago Cubs, is free at last from all the troubles his swinging fists have stirred up on and off the baseball field.

The final case against him was decided in his favor yesterday by a superior court jury, which acquitted him of charges of assaulting Edward Young, a Chicago milkman, and rejecting Young's suit for $20,000 damages.

Flanked by seven witnesses, Wilson won his case in short order against the milkman, who charged that the pudge Cub outfielder beat him severely during the Cub-St. Louis Cardinal game, June 21, 1928. The jury deliberated only 25 minutes.

Young testified he went to the game sober and joined other fans in booing Wilson for failing to get a hit. Toward the end of the game, he said, Wilson vaulted into the box seats, knocked him down and then threw him over a seat. As a result, he claimed, his lip was bruised and his back wrenched so severely that he was incapacitated for weeks.

Wilson admitted starting after Young with the intent to silence his taunts, but denied striking him. He said he fell while en route to Young's seat and that Young pounced upon and struck him.

AND NOW BAT NELSON WOULD ESSAY COMEBACK

Chicago—(AP)—Shades of Goldfield and Reno; Battling Nelson is yearning for a ring comeback.

No sooner had the former world's lightweight champion read about Charlie White's comeback campaign than he thrust his chest and challenged him.

"White is good enough to come back, so am I," the once durable Dane said. "There is many a good sock in these fists of mine and the fight promoters, who are digging the cemeteries for good fighters, can throw away their spades."

Nelson wants to meet White in the latter's comeback try at Jack Dempsey's show at the Coliseum, Feb. 21.

AMERICAN LEAGUE UMPIRES CONFERENCE WITH BARNARD

Chicago—(AP)—The American League's annual two day class for its umpires opened today under the tutelage of President S. Barnard.

Barnard has prepared a good list of "what not to do's" for his staff, so as to preclude possibilities of disagreements especially in univocal cases. Mistakes of last season also were to be discussed and pointed out.

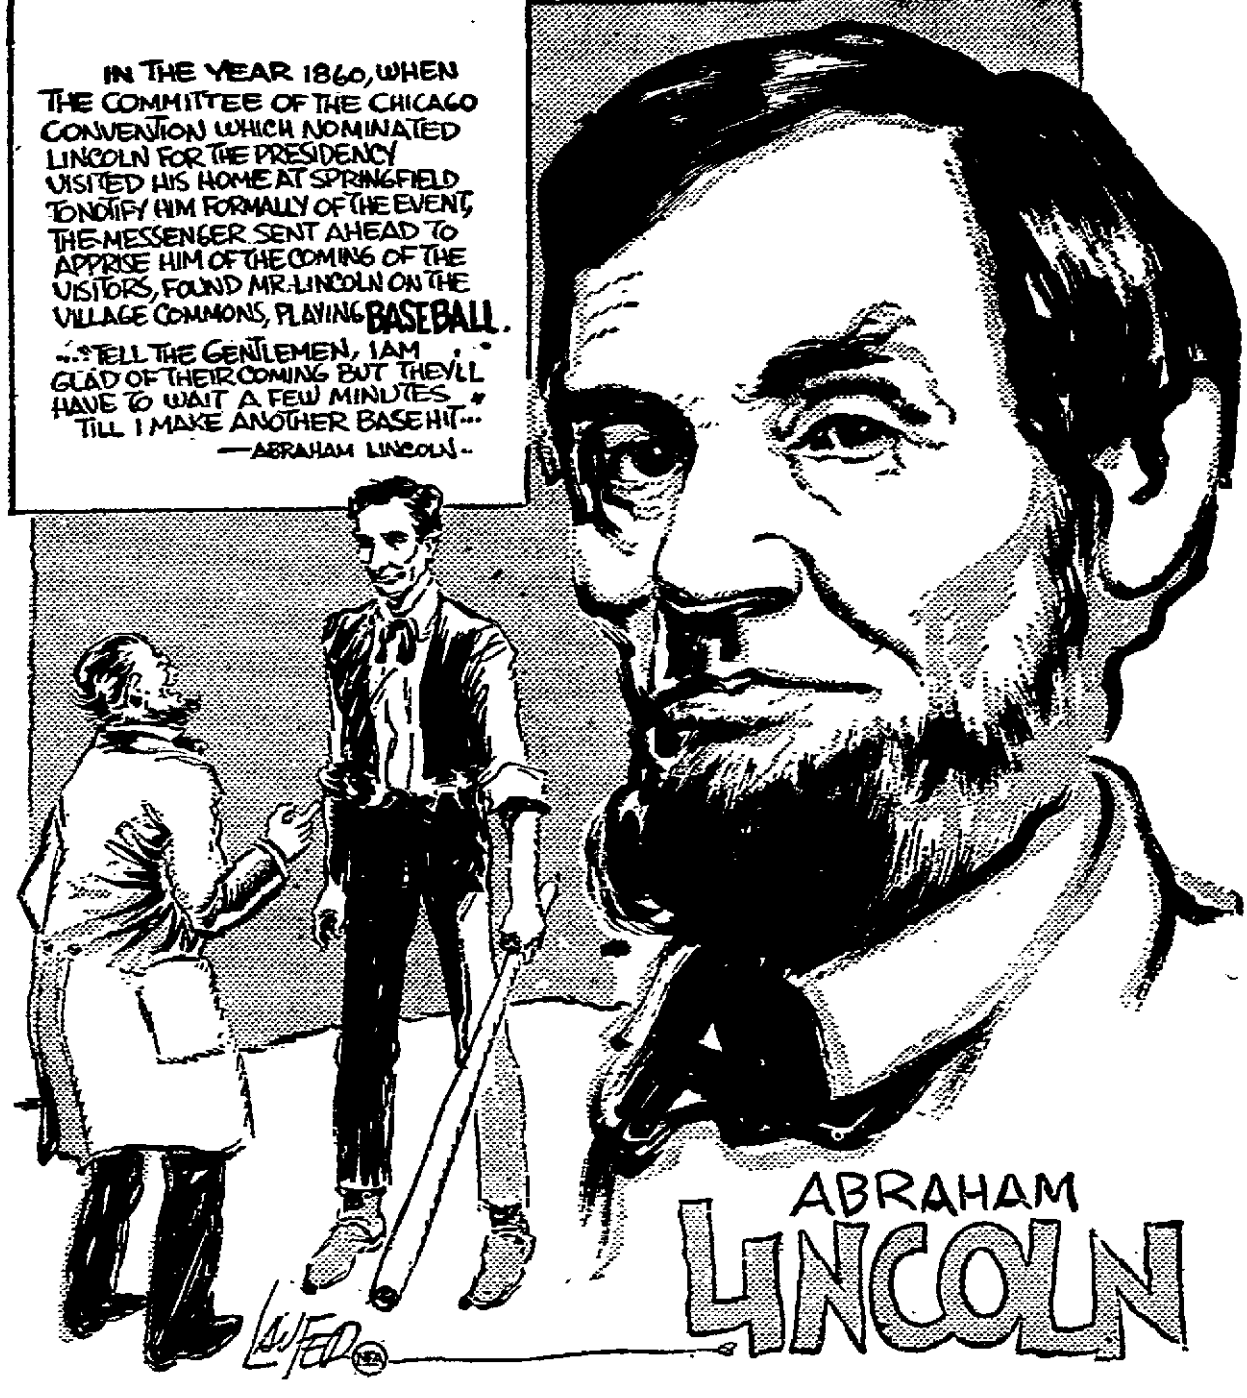

All twelve arbiters of the junior circuit, including Tommy Connolly who has recovered from the illness that kept him out of many games last season, gathered for the classes.

Lawrence, High School Cagers Play This Week

LAWRENCE college and Appleton high school basketball teams both show in exhibitions on the home court this week, the Orange Friday evening with East Green Bay and the Vikings Saturday evening with Knox. Lawrence will then rest a day and play Ripon here on Saturday.

Pleased with their first taste of conference victory, the high school cagers are planning this week to take the East Bays for a trimming. The invaders won by a comparatively close score on their home court.

MARQUETTE SEXTET ALMOST BEATS YALE

New Haven, Conn.—(AP)—Marquette almost won from Yale in a basketball game last night, but a shower of shots in the last two minutes of play sewed up the game for the big blue and assured them an 8 to 3 victory.

Up to the closing moments of the last period, both teams appeared quite evenly matched and the possibility of a tie score was in sight. But Marquette also claimed two tallies and another in the third.

Then Palmer swept into action, scoring three of the four Yale goals and giving his team its thirteenth straight win.

Capt. McFadyen featured for Marquette.

Rush For Army-Irish Duca's Begins

Chicago—(AP)—The rush for tickets for the Army-Notre Dame football game, to be played at Soldier field instead of New York next Nov. 23, already has started.

The Notre Dame ticket office has received thousands of requests for pasteborders although applications for individual games will not be available until Aug. 1.

VIKING "B" FROSH MEET SEYMOUR SATURDAY

Lawrence college freshman "B" basketball team Saturday evening will play the preliminary to the Knox-Lawrence game up at Alexander gymnasium, according to Coach Eddie Kotal. The yearlings will meet Seymour in a game scheduled to begin about 7 o'clock.

Monday afternoon the "B" squad met and defeated the St. Norbert college frosh over at DePere the score being 18 and 16. A last period assault by the St. Norbert five almost took the win away from the Viking yearlings. After the game the Lawrence squad was guests of St. Norbert college at dinner.

BARNARD SAYS RUTH IN GREAT CONDITION

Chicago—(AP)—Take it from President Ernest S. Barnard of the American league, Babe Ruth is going to worry a lot of pitchers next season if he is comes to terms with the Yankees.

"Babe is in such great trim that he is a certainty to have another banner year and a big crop of home runs," Barnard said following his return from Florida. "He is in prime condition because of his faithful and rigorous training."

BUSTER MARTIN IS ADDED TO LIST OF CARNERA'S VICTIMS

Tulsa Policeman Knocked Out in Second Round by Giant Italian

S. T. LOUIS—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italy's man of magnitude, for the fourth time showed his punching ability to an American ring audience when he sent a swift right to the jaw of Buster Martin, Tulsa, Okla., policeman, and ended a scheduled 10-round contest after 56 seconds of the second stanza had elapsed at the Arena last night. Martin was on his feet during the nearly four minutes of the two rounds but had to be carried out after Carnera made an effective contact.

The behemoth came out slowly for the first round and Martin apparently started with the attitude of slaying with the Alpine Goliath as long as possible. Primo attempted to add another first round K. O. to his string but the policeman kept at a distance, when possible. Carnera failed to display a great amount of effective timing or punches and missed frequently, Martin diving for the big boy's abdomen and hanging on, until Primo wrestled free.

Carnera landed a few left hooks which made Martin wobble on his feet and instead of dancing out of range, the Tulsa staggered away. The crowd cheered as Martin went to his corner at the bell.

Buster made a costly mistake in the second, after clinching a few times, when he tried to lead with a right to Carnera's head, only to have the big one's right collie with his jaw.

Martin's head hit the canvas with a thump and he lay perfectly still during the count. Carnera helped Buster's seconds carry the conquered gladiator into the corner.

MULFORDS RALLY TO BEAT APPLETON "5"

Defeat Holy Name Society Cagers 33 and 24; Have Won 5 Straight

A rally in the late stages of the game which netted four field goals for the Mulford basketball team enabled the Kaukauna quintet to beat Appleton Holy Name society team in a battle staged Monday at Kaukauna. The game was the fifth straight win for the Mulfords who have defeated Little Chute Merchants, Green Bay Reservists and other squads. The score in the Mulford-Holy Name game was 33 and 24.

The Appleton five caused the Kaws much trouble until late in the game when a rally clinched the win. Previous to that only a few points separated the teams as they galloped back and forth down the court.

Led by Kilgas at center, the Mulfords secured a lead which the Holy Name five changed to 14 all as half time ended. In the second period the Appleton team was three points ahead with five minutes to go. The Kaws then staged a comeback to cop.

Teams visiting games with the Kaws should write Stanley Beguhn, 220 Sarah-st., Kaukauna, phone 173-J.

BENNY BASS TO SHOW WARES IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee—(AP)—Benny Bass, Junior lightweight champion of the world, will show his wares to Wisconsin fans in a bout at the Milwaukee auditorium Feb. 22.

The signing of Bass was announced yesterday by Promoter Billy Mitchell, who said he has not yet obtained an opponent for him. The appearance will cost Mitchell only $3,500, the lowest figure for which Bass has worked since he knocked out Tod Morgan to win the championship.

CHANGE VOLLEYBALL DATES FOR "Y" TEAM

Appleton Y. M. A. volleyball team originally scheduled to meet the Oshkosh Elks tonight will play Kimberly at Appleton instead, according to announcement by Arthur E. Jensen, secretary of the Fox Valley Volleyball league. The game will be played in the association gym and will begin at 8 o'clock. The game with the Oshkosh Elks will be played at Oshkosh Monday.

INDIANA CAGERS WILL BATTLE NORTHWESTERN

Chicago—(AP)—Indiana's fading hopes of remaining in the Big Ten championship struggle, now led by Purdue's undefeated Boilermakers, will rise or fall tonight when they invade Northwestern. The Hoosiers have lost two games out of five and another defeat will all but throw them out of the race.

VOCATS LOSE TO ROACH SPORTS AS BEARS BEAT WOLVES

Extremes of Basketball Are Shown in "Y" League Tuesday Evening

The two extremes in basketball, a rout and a good, close game were played Tuesday evening in the Older Boy league of the Y. M. C. A. The route gave the Roach Sports a win over the Vocational school five by a score of 34 and 1 and the close game resulted in the Fourth Ward Bears beating the Wolverines 18 and 17.

There's little to say about the Sports' walkaway over the Vocats. The score at the half time was 12 and 0 for the winners the Vocats failing to even get a free-throw. In the second half everybody on the Roach team took a hand at scoring and 22 points were counted while the Vocats clicked but a lone counter.

Leading to within the last minute of play, the Wolverines saw their chance to meeting the Roach Sports for the league title go by the boards when Kamps dropped a field goal with less than 30 seconds to play. Previous to that the Bears had trailed 17 and 16.

Wednesday evening at 6:30 the Irish and Roach Sports meet to play off a tie for top position. The winner will meet the Bears later for the league crown.

I want other workers to know about them." Guaranteed to give satisfaction, adv.

CHEESE FEDERATION GROWTH IS ENORMOUS

Increases Annual Business from $855,000 in 1914 to Nearly 10 Million

Madison—(AP)—A train 20 miles long with 2,168 refrigerator cars loaded with cheese. A mammoth cheese 89 feet in diameter and 125 feet high. Enough cheese for every person in the United States to have one-third pound each.

These are some of the methods used in measuring the amount of cheese handled by the National Cheese Producers' Federation in 1929. L. J. Gardner, told the body of an address at the annual meet here today.

He traced the growth of the organization from its inception April 1, 1914, as a market for 45 factories in Switzerland, Wisconsin, with a business of $3,000 to the present federation which did a business of nearly $10,000,000 last year.

"The outstanding development during the last year," Mr. Gardner said, "on its effect on the sales division was the expansion of the federation into the field of foreign trade cheese on a big scale, resulting in the addition of 151 Swiss, British, and Limburger factories to the organization." Business from this expansion amounted to nearly $1,500,000, he said.

A second noteworthy development was the small loss due to poor crops. Of the large volume of business, only $400 was had during the first four months of the year. Mr. Gardner explained.

The federation is attempting to build up sale of its own brand. "Efforts in this direction are necessarily limited because of the lack of any appropriation either for advertising or for the consuming public, for the purpose of leading advertising help to our jobbers," he said.

The year 1929 was the best in the history of the federation. F. A. C. Gardner, general manager, told those at the meeting. Among the gains was one of 29 per cent in new members. The federation has been making a vigorous fight for adequate tariffs on cheese," he said. Through the National Cooperative Milk Producers federation, the cheese had, he attempted "to have the Republican party live up to its campaign and platform pledges to the farmer, success of which remains to be seen. On American cheese, he said the federation has secured a tariff increase.

NEW SOCIAL GROUP OF 100 PLANNED BY MISS JEANNE GOWEN

Exclusive Gathering Will Attend Movies Every Thursday Night

BY DOROTHY DAYTON
Special Dispatch to Post-Crescent
New York—(CPA)—There will be just one kind of party. And that's all the information you can get from Fredrick Shader, former editor of "Vanity," about those mythical "boudoir" people whom Miss Jeanne Gowen, former wife of Alfred I. Gowen, Chicago multi-millionaire, intends to get together into a social group even more exclusive than Mrs. Astor's fabulous 400 of the gay nineties.

The purpose of the group—you can't guess? To go to the movies on Thursday nights?

Of course these particular movies, (I beg your pardon, Mr. Shader, cinema) won't be any ordinary movies. No indeed! Not only will the group of 100 socially very exclusive not have to rub elbows with the common herd when they sit in their "boudoir" in the clouds (on top of the Charnin building, in having a black and silver modernistic chair, but they won't have to listen to the terribly distorted and out-of-tune music which is not only ruining the "mother tongue," but which has even aroused the English parliament to protest against the sale of American talks in England and English dominions.

In addition to seeing their movies in fashionable exclusiveness, and listening only to foreign music, and not the terrible home product which may be really enough for the rabble, they really intend to a lot of good in a big way and take a large part in furthering international good will. The project really looks like it will eclipse Detroit's new fashionable movie house in the exclusive Grasse Point district.

HAS TRAVELED WIDELY

Mrs. Gowen, before she married and divorced the son of the cement king of Chicago, was a Texas and has ears untouched by Mayberry. Mrs. Gowen, however, has traveled widely. It will be remembered that when she married Mr. Gowen he built her the 98-foot yacht, Speckjacks, and spent $100,000 on their wedding journey, which lasted for nearly two years and ended rather abruptly in the divorce.

Mr. Schader is business managing the concern, which is to be known as the International Cinema club. The group will take place either March 29 or 27. But this mythical "100"—who are they, and on what basis will they be gathered, Mr. Schader was asked.

"Well—there's a committee," he said vaguely. "And it will be based entirely on social prestige."

"All the Van 'bribles, I suppose," "No, no Vanderbilts."

"Dear me, what a dreadful blow to the Vanderbilts and all the others who will be left out!"

"Yes," said Mr. Schader. "And that, apparently, is that."

The theatre—I beg your pardon—playhouse—(apparently it's a theatre it is against the building regulations, but if it's a playhouse it isn't) has been sitting there on top of the Charnin building for nearly a year, and scarcely ever used, although it cost $200,000 or $1600 for each of its 200 seats.

New York—(CPA)—As President Hoover's own personally initiated literacy school opens at Dorca, Ky., the national advisory committee on literacy, appointed by the president sets under way in a national drive to improve the United States' literacy rating before the census man comes around.

New York members of the committee reported as somewhat unsatisfactory the replies of the various states to a questionnaire recently sent out, and there will be renewed efforts to put thousands of adult citizens through reading and writing exercises, so that the next decade will hang up a better score in rudimentary literacy pastimes.

This country, which has spent more on education than any other nation in the world, ranks thirteenth in the percentage of its inhabitants who can speak or write any one language. It has more than approximately 5,000,000 illiterates, although in 1900 there were 6,150,000.

Restoration of immigration and literacy tests for admission to the country have not appreciably affected the totals, according to unofficial estimates of the decline in the last ten years. The army tests at the same time of the war showed that 24.9 per cent of the men examined could not read.

MANY CAN'T READ

According to statistics gathered by members of President Hoover's committee, one-fourth of the adult population of America cannot now read a newspaper or write a letter. Three millions of the present 6,000,000 illiterates are native born, one and one-fourth millions of this 3,000,000 are white, the others being negroes. While in highly industrialized centers the greater percentage of illiteracy is urban, in the country as a whole the heavier percentage are rural, and it has its observation of the lack of schools in the southern rural districts which inspired President Hoover to do what no other president has ever done—to launch a national attack on illiteracy through a national committee.

The late Franklin K. Lane estimated that illiteracy cost the United States $85,000,000 a year. The National Education association reported, after a study of this problem, that there were 20,000,000 persons above the age of ten in this country who could not make effective use of reading.

But it is not only in lower economic quality and in industrial waste and disaster that high illiteracy percentages are reflected. The president's committee has figures revealing illiteracy in a startling new aspect as an index of capacity for popular government. Fourteen European governments coming under the heading "populism" have an average of 7.5 per cent of illiterates for the group. These countries are Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, Estonia, Finland, Ireland, Czechoslovakia and Latvia. Fifteen countries under dictatorship, or generally less democratic forms of government, show an average of 34.5 per cent. These countries are Spain, Bulgaria, Poland, Portugal, Hungary, Rumania, Italy, Greece, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Lithuania and Albania.

The World Literacy committee, headed by Ben Lundy, William, secretary of the federation. It is carrying on an energetic campaign through state and local authorities throughout the country.

Colored Barber Was One Of Lincoln's Confidants

BY BRUCE CATTION
Springfield, Ill.—Before Abraham Lincoln left Springfield to go to the White House, his home town of his held just two men who could claim to be his confidants.

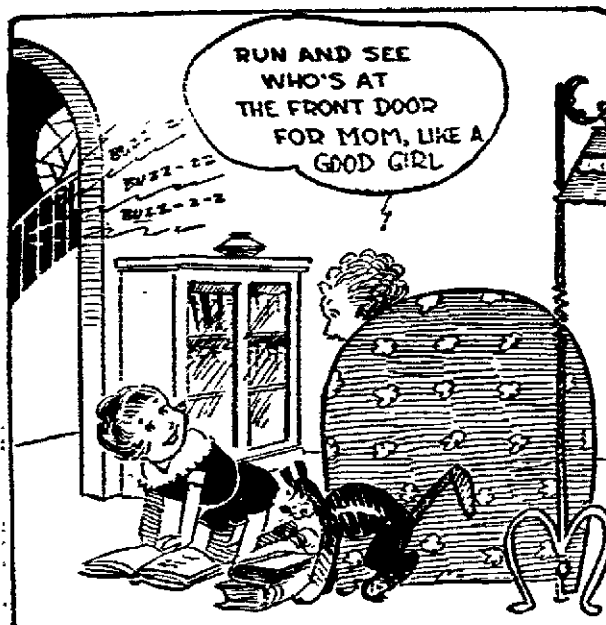

One was his law partner, the famous William A. Herndon.

The other was a colored barber, William de Fleurville, known to the Springfield of that day as "Billy the Barber" or "Billy Rex."

A search of the returned old files of the Illinois State Journal and a series of talks with Springfield antiquarians established Billy the Barber's position as an unusual but picturesque character in the Lincoln drama.

NATALIE SUMNER LINCOLN

CHAPTER 35
THE DISCOVERY

THERE was a tense expression on the faces of the expectant audience as Sheriff Beach held out the paper which Sundown had handed him and read the handwriting of Herbert Prescott aloud.

"Have placed documents proving Philander Chase's double dealing with the two checks to which he forged my name in the vault with my securities. Twice he has threatened my life. Knowledge of all this has just come to me."

Heads turned toward the silent form as Sheriff Beach continued reading. "I plan to cross his name from my will but should I die before doing so, and it is prophesied that I will not survive another May, my heir is to show this and the aforementioned documents to the probate court and ask that Philander Chase be removed as executor of my will."

"Scolding the clerk in the family Bible, I safeguarded my wealth for my brother's daughter. But first she must be weighed in the balance God holds on high before gaining the fortune I have amassed. To acquire it, I sacrificed the love of my people and dwelt a recluse. May God have mercy on my soul!"

"Poor Prescott!" ejaculated Obadiah sorrowfully; "he magnified his own faults and deemed himself accused in the sight of man. No wonder his reason gave way."

The sheriff broke the tense silence. "Prescott's signature is shaky but legible."

Chase rose; he had aged in the last hour, and his hands were far from steady.

"My unfortunate brother wrote that he faced difficulties," he explained. "But--all this has no bearing on Stanton's murder."

His words provoked a laugh from Sundown.

"Wait," exclaimed the half-breed, as Chase advanced threateningly. "The night that Stanton was killed I awoke and heard some one move on the other cot in my tent. He paused dramatically before continuing. 'My eyes, thanks to treatment, see more and more; so I lay still, very still, and by and by the man on the cot got up, and as he lifted up the tent flap, I saw his face.'--Slowly he moved his head until his gaze rested on the dead man and his finger was raised accusingly. 'I see him, dressed as he is.' 'Good God!' Chase remained rooted to the spot, too horrified to move."

"Go up there," Sundown addressed the sheriff as he indicated the head of the staircase. "I leave there a bundle. Bring it here."

Beach did so and unwrapped an automatic pistol.

"A gun!" he ejaculated, thunder-struck. "Good Lord, the woods are full of them!"

"I find it in the cot the next morning," stated Sundown. "One shot had been fired."

Sheriff Beach emptied the clip. "I shoot a .45 caliber bullet; one cartridge is missing," he said. Examining the handsome weapon, two initials stamped on it caught his eye, and he repeated them aloud.

"P. C."

"Philander Chase." Who breathed the name, Peggy did not know. She saw the look of anguish in Chase's face and held out her hand in instinctive sympathy.

Chase pressed it hard in both of his, then bowing his head, he addressed the sheriff. "You've proven your case," he said, struggling to repress his emotion. "Philander"--he stopped, unable to go on for a second--"what disposal will be made of the body?" I presume," he said with a ghastly smile, "you don't arrest a dead man for murder?"

"No; only a living one," Obadiah's hand descended on Chase's shoulder. "You don't get away quite so easy, Philander Chase."

"What?" chorused the others, as Obadiah pinned the squirming, fighting man against the wall.

"Put on the handcuffs," he panted. "There, sit down," and he thrust Chase into a chair, the sheriff towering above him, his arm handcuffed to him.

"You see, Chase," went on Obadiah, breathing more easily, "you overreached yourself, when, pretending to be your twin, Aquila, you left a specimen plant at home and told me 'twas a green fringed orchid. I'm not up on botany but I do know an iris plant. When I see one, I got the idea that praps you two twins has swapped identities. I couldn't quite see why, then--"

"Go ahead," directed Beach.

"So I got out that empty holster you brought me, Chase, and said Stanton had left at Stone Tower. Looking at it under a magnifying glass I saw the first letter stamped on it. U had been cleverly changed to 'E', so that the brand 'U. S.' read 'E. S.', Stanton's initials." Obadiah paused before adding, "I'll allow what had he done to you?"

Chase stirred, hesitated, then spoke in a voice low and bitter.

"I realized he had penetrated my masquerade that night. I followed him here, got in that door," pointing to the one opening on the veranda. "Switched off the lights, and shot him just as Miss Prescott fired and made my escape in the confusion."

He glared at Sundown, murder in his eyes. "I trusted to your night blindness not to discover me on the cot. I was so played out I had to rest before taking the long trip over East Summit."

"Why did you brothers swap identities?"

"Because Aquila was always a weakling," scornfully. "I came to Stone Tower that I might get the run of the house, but Julia hung around always."

"So that's that," Obadiah straightened up. "I'm thinking the navy gun you found here, Sheriff, belonged to Stanton, and he dropped it here that night."

Julia stirred in her chair. "I once picked up Miss Peggy's an' pushed it in Mister Jim's coat, thinkin' maybe he couldn't prove she done shot Lieutenant Stanton," she said.

At a word from the sheriff his men, silent spectators of all that had transpired, carried the stretcher with the dead botanist out of the house and into the waiting automobile; then, jerked to his feet by a tug at the handcuffs, Philander Chase shambled along behind them.

GIRL BOAT LOVER

IS HARBOR MASTER

Paignton, England.—(AP)—A dark-eyed Devon girl with a stormy name has become Great Britain's first woman harbor master.

She is Stella Gale, aged 21, a yachting enthusiast with an unusually broad knowledge of tides, winds and seamanship.

For the last four years she has been working for an engineering company here, but much of her spare time was spent aboard her motorboat or on the deck of a racing yacht.

When the veteran harbor master of Paignton died Miss Gale applied for the job, and her qualifications were such that the directors of the harbor company felt justified in throwing all precedent overboard and giving the position to a girl.

NYE TO WORK FOR EARLY REPEAL OF DAVIS AMENDMENT

Would Eliminate Provision for Equal Distribution of Radio Facilities

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1938, by Cons. Press
Washington—Repeal of the much-abused and controverted Davis equalization amendment, which requires equal distribution of radio broadcasting facilities among the five radio zones, according to population, will be sought immediately by Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota.

The senator, this writer learns, will introduce at once legislation designed to eliminate the provision, which was enacted in March, 1928, and has been the target of criticism of all broadcasters since then. He will propose that licenses, wave lengths, hours of operation and station power be distributed so as "to insure an equality of radio broadcasting service, both of transmission and of reception to the people of the different states and communities."

Asserting that the present law is restrictive and wasteful, Senator Nye says it deprives people in the least thickly populated areas of adequate radio service, and is an arbitrary regulation serving no good purpose. It has been apparent for many months that this issue would be raised in congress.

CHANCES ARE GOOD
Now, after the North Dakota senator introduces the measure, it will be referred to the senate interstate commerce committee, charged with radio legislation, for recommendation to the senate. Its chances of enactment are considered good.

The Davis amendment provides for the equal distribution of all broadcasting facilities, as nearly as possible, among the radio zones, which are disproportionate in size, but have approximately the same population. Hence the geographically large southern zone and the vast western zone, can have no more stations or wave lengths and power assignments than can be operated without interference in the small and compact first zone, comprising New England, New York and adjacent states.

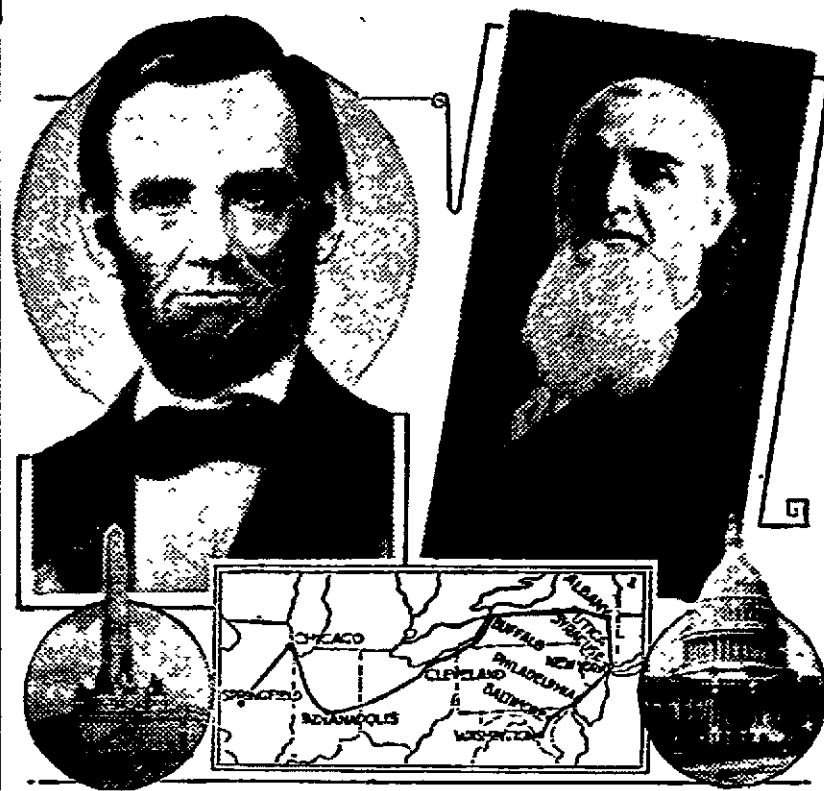

As former Radio Commissioner O. E. Caldwell, who hunched the battle against the Davis amendment, views it, all four of the geographically great radio zones, must, under the amendment "wear the same size radio pants" as will properly fit the physically small first or eastern zone. He contended that it deprived the people in the south and the west, of radio service which might be theirs. He has argued that sound engineering practice makes it possible for a vastly increased number of stations to operate by "doubling up" on wave lengths in the large, sparsely settled geographical areas, without interference, whereas this is impossible in the smaller congested sections.

Pilot Recalls Sombre Run Of Lincoln's Funeral Train

George W. Wrightson (right) believes he is the last of engineers who piloted Lincoln's funeral train over the route shown in map. Lincoln is shown as he appeared when president.

Redlands, Cal.—(P)—Shrouded in black bunting and draped with American flags, a sable train rolled slowly over the New York Central tracks from New York to Uteca between lines of silent, grieving people.

One of the cars carried the body of a slain president, Abraham Lincoln.

In the engine cab of the funeral train, slowly tolling the bell as the miles passed, sat George W. Wrightson, who now believes he is the last of six engineers, picked for ability who piloted the train from Washington to Springfield.

At each switch, Wrightson peered cautiously from his cab. Each switch had been spiked, to prevent tampering until the train had passed. The cortege was given right-of-way over all other traffic.

"When we reached the depot at Syracuse, the train was greeted by the most impressive demonstration I have ever seen," Wrightson recalls.

"The train shed was covered with the national colors and black festoons. An immense, silent throng had waited hours to glimpse the cortege."

There were five cars in the train, carrying members of the Lincoln family, government officials, the casket and newspapermen. They were the first Pullmans to run on a New York Central track.

The front of the engine bore a portrait of the martyred president. At sight of the picture and the draped locomotive, throngs along the track drew back. Some waved small flags. Others wept openly. When the train had passed they stepped to the track and watched it fade into the distance.

Wrightson, 88, is nearly blind and retired from roadroading after 53 years service.

CLOTHING WORKERS' UNION ON STRIKE

$350,000 Industry Is All
Tied Up Right at Peak of Season

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS
New York—Paris at the height of its season, is busily engaged in showing the buyers assembled there from all parts of the world just what's what in clothes.

And presumably women all over the country are turning their thoughts toward new frocks and Easter finery.

But the workrooms of the New York garment center are ominously silent. The dressmakers, cutters, operators, finishers, pressers, examiners, drapers, sample makers and cleaners are picking instead of stitching.

FACTORIES ARE SILENT
For the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, 25,000 strong, has called its first strike in seven years and is tying up a $350,000,000 industry, right at the peak of its season.

Thousands of bolts of printed silk and pastel crepe de chine are piling up in stockrooms, while factories that usually hum and bustle are now silent—eloquently so.

It was estimated that the first day of the strike cost the manufacturers $7,000 dresses and approximately $2,000,000 in cash.

If, as they expect, the workers are out from 10 days to two weeks before terms are agreed upon, the country will be some two million dresses short. And the well-dressed women and the snappy stenographers may be wearing last year's models, whether they like it or not.

KEY MEN OF STRIKE

The key men of the strike are the ones who are highest paid—the cutters. They average close to $60 a week. So long as they don't cut, the rest can't sew or press. Twenty-five hundred cutters walked out the first day. Some cut as many as 200 frocks a day, but the average number is 75.

Strikers are protesting the sweat shop situation in New York. "Good strike strategy has been demonstrated by the leaders, who called the strike at the height of the busy season, a season that looks prosperous, following one in which the manufacturer had two bad business breaks—the market crash and the radical change in styles which threw production into chaos."

Strikers demand, besides the elimination of the sweatshop, further organization privileges, and an unemployment insurance fund to be paid by the employer.

STRIKE MAY BE SETTLED

The making of dresses, they point out, is seasonal, with only about 20 weeks of steady employment divided into two seasons. The average wage of the women employed, and 65 per cent of the union are women, is between $36 and $40 a week, which sounds high until one considers that there is apt to be unemployment 20 weeks of each year.

Union leaders hope there will be little friction, and that matters can be settled within a fortnight. Thus they figure that the season will merely be delayed, rather than bring too heavy losses on the employers. New York is so firmly established as the garment making center they do not expect pro-
